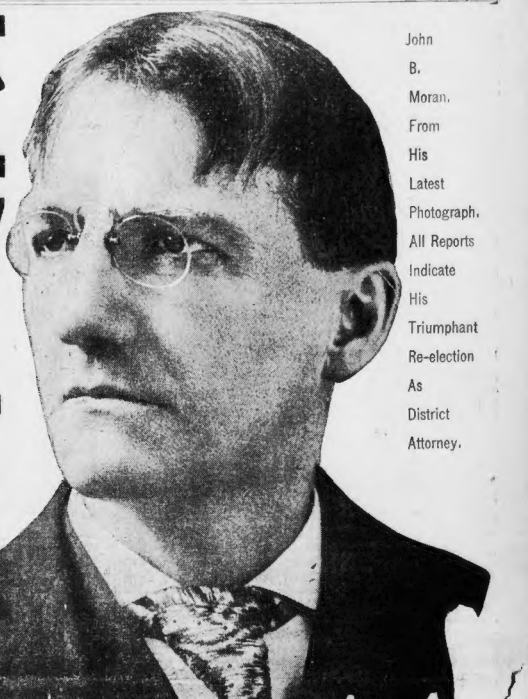
MORAN WAVE SWEEPS CITY



John B. Moran. From His Latest Photograph. All Reports Indicate His Triumphant Re-election As District Attorney.

Voters Crowd to Polls Early in All the Wards and More Than Half the Ballots Had Been Cast Before Noon—Enthusiasm for District Attorney Shown Everywhere.

An unexpectedly heavy vote in Boston, brought out largely on account of the district attorney fight, was the feature of to-day's election up to the early afternoon. More than one-half of the registered vote had been cast in many sections of the city by 12 o'clock.

In all of the wards it was conceded that Hisgen was polling a strong vote.

Moran followers declared that in the inlying districts of the city his strength was proving greater than they anticipated, while he was holding his own in the outlying sections.

TAMMANY THUGS RULE POLLS AT NEW YORK

MAKE VAIN APPEAL TO POLICE IN HEARST'S FIGHT FOR HONEST JUDGES.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Violence and thuggery by the Tammany Hall-Foley-McClellan amalgamation of election thieves were reported to-day in many assembly districts, it being the intention to terrorize and intimidate the Independence League voters.

The Independence League watchers, in the Twelfth election district of Borough President "Johnny" Ahearn's Assembly district were ousted soon after the polls opened because they objected to a band of known repeaters voting. The Tammany election officials and the Tammany watchers, ably assisted by the three policemen there, assisted in the violent ejectment of the Independence League watchers. When an appeal was made to police headquarters the reply was:

Vain Appeal to Police.

"Oh, we guess the police know their business. We will not interfere."

For hours after this incident a gang of thugs stood in the entrance to the polling place and beat off every attempt that the Independence League watchers made to regain admittance.

Percy Nagle, the Tammany Hall leader in Harlem, who is a candidate for alderman, caused the arrest of George Black, the Independence League candidate against him, on a charge of illegal voting. Mr. Black, who is one of the best known residents of Harlem and who has had a bookstore for a quarter of a century at Fifth avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, was taken to the station in a patrol wagon.

Call It Conspiracy.

As it is well known that Black has not changed his residence in twenty years the arrest was looked upon as part of a conspiracy to intimidate Independence League voters and make them fear to go to the polls, no matter what right they had to vote.

"All for Moran"—Lomasney

Dennison made a good showing, his friends say, particularly in Ward 12, where Superintendent of Streets Doyle began his hustling early in the day. Donovan's vote for sheriff in his own ward—Ward 9—was said to be very heavy.

In Ward 6, Mayor Fitzgerald's old home, the Italian voters flocked to the polls to swell the vote for Moran.

"There is nothing in sight but Moran," said Martin Lomasney, Democratic leader of Ward 8. "I get the same reports from all over the city. He will be elected by a large plurality."

DEMOCRATS SPLIT.

The Democratic vote, particularly in Ward 29, the home of the O'Connells, was reported to be split among Whitney, Bartlett and Hisgen.

The Republican vote in this city and outside appeared to be lighter than the campaign managers thought it would be.

Reports from Brockton were to the effect that the voters are supporting E. Gerry Brown loyally. That is the home town of the Independence League candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

In Malden and Melrose, strong Republican sections, reports were that Hisgen and Brown were running well. Like information came to the BOSTON AMERICAN from other sections of the State.

Despite the appearance of city employes as "outside" men around the city voting booths, there was little strength shown for either Dennison or Webster, Moran's opponents for county prosecutor. The whole city seemed to be swept, as the AMERICAN had predicted, by a wave of enthusiasm for Moran.

All through the different wards it was evident that the employes of the city, upon whom the Mayor had wielded the machine lash to hold them in line for Dennison, were cutting him in favor of Moran.

LITTLE TROUBLE AT BOOTHS.

There was little or no disorder reported anywhere. At Precinct 5, Ward 13, a Dennison man complained to the police that a Moran checker was wearing a Moran button inside the booth. A sergeant who investigated remarked that he could see no reason to order him to take the button off.

"Hisgen's vote will nearly equal, if it doesn't equal, that of Whitney in this ward," declared Daniel P. Leighton, chairman of the Ward 13 Democratic Committee, at 8 o'clock to an AMERICAN reporter.

The same is true all over Boston. In every precinct heard from it was reported that both Republicans and Democrats were flocking to Hisgen's standard in great numbers.

A ballot box of a new style got out of order in the polling place at Powell and Sumner street, Precinct 9, Ward 24, and its use was stopped pending the arrival of Election Commissioners Burlen and Milton.

With them came a man who repaired the box, but it did not take the workman long. It is said that ballots put in the box were torn in the operation. How many were thus damaged has not been stated. The box had been in use more than an hour.

From Wards 6, 8, 20 and 24 reports were received as early as 6:45 a. m., announcing thousands of votes cast in the first three-quarters of an hour.

WARD 1.

By 9 o'clock between 200 and 300 votes had been cast in each of the precincts in Ward 1, that being the ward Moran had decided lead over all his opponents and Mr. Hisgen was polling a good vote. Precinct three showed a large Republican vote.

At 11:30 there had been 2,270 votes cast, out of a total of 3,443 registered.

WARD 5.

In Precinct 2, out of 200 votes cast at 10 o'clock, 150 were for Moran for District Attorney.

WARD 6.

In most of the precincts of Ward 6 Moran is polling a heavy vote. In precinct 2, near Copp's Hill burying ground, Donahue is polling a good vote. In North square, where 423 Italian votes are registered, Moran is getting a large number. In precinct 3, at Parmenter and Hanover streets, Moran and Hisgen are running very strong.

E. Gerry Brown, Independence League candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, is receiving a heavy vote in this ward.

WARD 8.

Moran is sweeping everything before him in Ward 8, the stronghold of Martin M. Lomasney. A record vote was cast by noon. Hisgen is also receiving a far larger vote than the machine leaders had expected.

In Precinct 4, where many of the voters are Hebrews, and in Precinct 5, also a Hebrew stronghold, John B. Moran is getting almost all of the votes. In Precinct 6, in the Ward room in Blossom street, Hisgen is surprising the leaders with the vote he is getting. Moran is running very strong.

WARD 7.

In Ward 7 the Republican vote was out particularly early.

In this ward scores of city employes live, and they were all out at the polls early, decked with Dolan, Dennison and Donovan ribbons, working with all their might and main to get out the full machine vote. In particular everything possible is being done for Dennison.

WARD 9.

In Ward 9, the home ward of James Donovan, the leaders concede that the task of swinging the ward to Dennison is too great for Mr. Donovan. The orders are to do everything for Dennison and let Dolan and Donovan follow. "Everything for Dennison" is the war cry.

In this ward Moran sentiment is pronounced, more so even than the leaders had expected.

WARD 10.

Moran is polling a big vote in Ward 10, in which he lives. Indications are that Webster is getting the lightest vote of the three candidates. James Donovan early had a long lead on Sheriff Seavey and many of the votes he is receiving are those of Republicans.

WARD 11.

J. Montgomery Sears, Jr., is leading the Democratic forces in Ward 11. At 10 o'clock there was evidence of a light vote for Moran. Webster at that hour appeared lightly had the better of the contest in this ward.

WARD 12.

In Ward 12, James H. Doyle, Superintendent of Streets, was at the polls when they opened to-day. He instructed his lieutenants to turn in and do everything that they could for Dennison above every other candidate on the Democratic ticket.

The general sentiment is very strong in Ward 12. The feeling among the leaders is that Webster may carry the ward, as many Republicans vote there and the Democratic vote is being divided between Moran and Dennison.

WARD 13.

Precinct 5, corner Broadway and E—At 8 o'clock 155 votes had been cast. Moran was running strong, and Dennison was making a fair showing. A Dennison bench man complained to the police that a Moran checker wore a Moran button in the booth, but a sergeant refused to interfere.

Precinct 6, Fifth street and D—The voting here was light, 114 ballots being cast by 8 o'clock.

Precinct 7, Seventh street—In this precinct, Senator Linehan's own, 225 ballots were cast by 8 o'clock. The Senator took charge of bringing out the voters and he himself voted at 7:30. Moran early was getting a heavy vote. Chairman Daniel F. Leighton of the ward Democratic committee was reported to be working hard for Dennison.

$8 MILLIONS IN GOLD HERE FROM EUROPE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Eight millions of the $30,000,000 gold already engaged in Europe by New York banks, arrived on the steamship Kronprinzess Cecile to-day. In the North German Lloyd liner's wake the big Cunarder Lusitania is bringing $10,000,000 more. The rest of the $30,000,000 is expected within a week. More gold is being engaged constantly and financiers say the yellow flood is not likely to stop short of $50,000,000.

Marked, as it is, by a stare on this immense inflow of money, financial leaders regard to-day as the happiest holiday they have known in years. They believe the point has at last been reached where the tide may be counted on to turn and that, from now on, conditions will improve rapidly.

The Bank of England has asked the Bank of France to advance the former $15,000,000, according to a Central News dispatch from Paris.

UNION AGAIN HITS DRAPER

LOWELL, Nov. 5.—Labor union men gave their special attention at a meeting in Association Hall to the labor record of Lieutenant-Governor Eben S. Draper.

Sprouls of the Lowell Street Railway Union presided, and the speakers were President Edward Cohen of the State Branch of the American Federation of Labor, and Dennis D. Driscoll, secretary-treasury of the organization.

MAKES COMPLAINT TO DIST. ATTY. MORAN OF REPEATING IN WARD 6.

John F. Cunio, of No. 38 North Bennett street, complained to District Attorney Moran this noon that a repeater had voted on his name in Ward 6, the Mayor's old ward. He was told when he went to vote at 11 o'clock that his brother had doubtless used his name. He said that his brother was registered under his own name. District Attorney Moran advised him to return and vote under protest.

"There are any number of Italians in Ward 6 who want to vote for Moran," said Cunio. "But the machine is working for Dennison, and ignorant voters are being bulldozed.

AYLWARD AND FLYNN TO STAY

Michael H. Flynn and James F. Aylward, who have been sparring with John W. Coveney of East Cambridge, have turned down the latter's offer of all three withdrawing from the Cambridge Mayoralty race in favor of former Representative J. Edward Barry.

The offer of Mr. Coveney, who is considered the "Grand Old Man of Cambridge Democracy," was turned down by both Messrs. Flynn and Aylward. Both declined to withdraw on the ground that "it was too late to accept it." All three men will at once start in the Mayoralty race, which means one of the hottest political battles that has faced the "University City" in years.

HUSBAND AND WIFE BURIED TOGETHER

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 5.—Dying within two days of each other, William A. Batchelder and Mary H. Batchelder, husband and wife are to be buried together. Each was 72 years old. Pneumonia caused death.

IMPORTANT ELECTIONS IN 12 STATES TO-DAY

LIQUOR QUESTION, SUNDAY CLOSING, GRAFT AND 3-CENT FARES AMONG THE ISSUES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Twelve States are holding elections to-day. Five of them, Massachusetts, Maryland, Rhode Island, Kentucky and Mississippi, will elect a Governor and other State officers; three of them, Ohio, California and Utah, are electing only municipal tickets. In New Jersey the vote is for the election of Governor, Assemblymen and certain municipal officers. In Pennsylvania a State Treasurer and in Nebraska a Supreme Court justice, a railroad commissioner and two regents of the State University are being elected. In this, New York State, two Justices of the Court of Appeals are being chosen, while in addition New York county is electing various judicial officers and a sheriff.

In the States where State tickets or Governors are to be elected, New Jersey and Kentucky are conspicuous from a standpoint of general interest. In Mississippi there is but one ticket in the field, Democratic of course, headed by E. F. Noel for Governor, and the situation is tame.

Prohibition Issue in Kentucky.

Kentucky, the paradox of States, is in the limelight not from her distribution of campaign refreshments, but because of the very antithesis of the thought that the name "Kentucky" suggests prohibition. Both candidates for Governor, Judge S. W. Hager, Democrat, and Augustus E. Wilson, Republican, have stumped the State in a whirlwind campaign, both crying for prohibition and both declaring that their election is not sincere. One of the heaviest votes ever polled in the State is expected to be cast. Each party claims the victory by majorities of from 15,000 to 25,000.

New Jersey has afforded a sensational campaign, and election day finds both Republicans and Democrats confident of victory, but with the more conservative estimate favoring J. Franklin Fort, the Republican nominee. Tours of the State in automobiles have been a feature of the campaign, with the liquor question and Sunday closing the paramount issue.

In Maryland the Democrats and Republicans have the field to themselves. The predictions are that Austin Lee Crothers, the Democratic nominee, will be successful, aside from the election of the State ticket, Maryland will also elect a member of the House of Delegates and half the State Senate. The coming session will also elect two Senators to the United States Senate—one to fill the unexpired term of the late Arthur P. Gorman and a successor to Senator Rayner.

Three-Cent Fares in Cleveland.

Among the municipal elections, the fight in Cleveland, O., between Tom Johnson and Representative Theodore Burton is attracting most attention throughout the union. Three-cent fares and the control of street car lines, which Johnson has made his specialty, are the issues. Johnson has stood for cheap fares and municipal ownership. Burton, who is favored by the Roosevelt administration, is understand for good government and conservation and has attacked Johnson's administration vigorously. There are many who think he will win, though Mayor Johnson's adherents assert that he will surely continue his reign in the Ohio city.

"Graft" in San Francisco.

Graft, as is usual, is the main issue in San Francisco. The Democrats and Good Government League have fused on the nomination of Edward R. Taylor, the present acting Mayor. The Republicans have put forward Daniel A. Ryan, and union labor also has a candidate in P. H. McCarthy.

Cincinnati faces a three-cornered fight, with indications favoring Leopold Markbreit, the Republican candidate for the mayoralty. He is opposed by Edward J. Dehoney, Democrat, and Frank P. Pfaff, city purty. This has split to some extent the Democratic vote, which is normally favorable to Colonel Markbreit, who is a veteran German soldier. The Cox machine is also behind him and the betting is in his favor, eight to one.

Salt Lake City has four tickets—Republican, Democratic, Socialist and American, or anti-Mormon. Charles G. Plummer is the Republican candidate for Mayor; the Democrats have nominated Richard P. Morris, and the anti-Mormons John S. Bransford.

Prohibitionists and Socialists.

The Prohibitionists have State tickets in the field in all States where elections are to be held, except in Maryland and Mississippi. They also have city tickets in Cleveland and Cincinnati, but not in San Francisco or Salt Lake City. With the exception of Mississippi and Maryland, the Socialists are also in the race. They have city tickets in Cleveland, Cincinnati and Salt Lake, but not in San Francisco.

In New Jersey and Kentucky the Socialist tickets are headed by Delaware tobacconists.

In addition to the elections enumerated above there are also elections in Delaware tomorrow on the prohibition issue.

WAITING LONG FOR PAPA

Annie, Ruth, Charles and Baby Gordee, on the steps of little home at Revere. In answer to their childish questions they are told that he will return soon.

LIBERTY MORE TO GIRL THAN GORDEE'S LOVE

Police Release Miss McLean To-day as Reward for True Story of Stolen Papers.

MAN'S WIFE TO RESCUE

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Miss Etta L. McLean, the stenographer arrested with Alexander H. Gordee for conspiracy to copy Government records in the prosecution of John R. Walsh, will be given her freedom to-day.

Miss McLean has renounced Gordee, consented to go on the witness stand and, if possible send him to prison by her sworn story, and in return she has been promised clemency.

"I am ready," she said, "to do all in my power to aid the secret service men in finding out the facts in the case, and wherever is guilty must suffer.

"If it is Gordee, he will have good. I did love him and I gave him my heart, but now he is dead to me forever, and it is his fault that I am here.

"Not Square With Me."

"He had a chance to prove himself a man, but he failed, and if it is a question of love or liberty, I will answer, 'Give me liberty.'

Miss McLean said that Friday night at a secret session between Gordee herself and the government officials Gordee was told that if he told all the woman would be set at liberty.

"Then he had his chance," said Miss McLean, "and he failed to prove himself to be a man. Why should I stick with him? I have done all I could but he not been square with me.

In addition Miss McLean made a statement that she was not the only employee of the United States District Attorney's office who had given out valuable Government information.

"You know," continued Miss McLean with a smile, "this is not Mr. Gordee's first experience in jail. He always told me that I would never become to the chief until I had been in jail. Well, I guess I belong to the elect now, all right. But heaven preserve me from anything like this again. I am going to resign from the office as soon as I obtain my freedom.

Wife Hurries to Aid Husband.

Gordee will be prosecuted meritlessly by the Government. Secret service officials declare that they unearthed enough of his guilt to send him to prison on several charges, should he escape the one for which he is now held.

Meanwhile the wife whom Gordee deserted for Miss McLean is on her way to Chicago, still believing in the man and quite ready to make every sacrifice possible to set him free. Mr. Gordee left Boston for Chicago last night, suspecting her confidence in her husband.

Deputy United States marshals last night began the service of summons on 200 veniremen for the trial. It is one of the largest venire that has ever been issued in the United States District Court shows.

With will be put on trial November 12, charged with having misapplied the funds of the Commercial National bank, with having made false entries in his reports to the Comptroller of the Currency.

TWO NATIONS HONOR NAME OF HERO MONARCH

Sweden and Germany Join Hands In Dedicating Memorial to Gustavus Adolphus.

DIED WHILE IN BATTLE

To-morrow will be the 275th anniversary of the death on the Lutzen battlefield of the great hero, statesman, and commander, Gustavus Adolphus, King of Sweden. On the scene of the famous battle, the decisive encounters in the long struggle for the Protestant faith, the event will be commemorated by the dedication of a memorial chapel of any stone.

The memorial is presented to the German people by one of the noblest and most patriotic citizens of Sweden of the present age—John Oscar Ekman, whose many years of connection with the diplomatic corps of Sweden has given him close touch with the foreign interests of his native country.

Died Before Work Was Complete.

One of his fond ambitions was to give to the German people a lasting monument to the greatest king who has sat on the Swedish throne, but he died before his plans were completed. His widow continued the work, however, and partly under her own direction the gray stone chapel was erected.

At the same time with the dedication, two magnificent statues, one of Gustavus Adolphus and the other of Martin Luther, will be unveiled on the grounds. Both were designed in Sweden and are given by Oscar Ekman.

The chapel is provided with a seating capacity of 1,000, but is not to be used regularly by any church denomination.

Plans for To-morrow's Event.

Some interesting details of the celebration to-morrow are obtained from Fredrik Peterson, of this city, who returned from a European tour last week. He was at Lutzen when the memorial was completed, and when preparations for the dedication were in full sway.

"In Lutzen, Leipsic and immediate vicinity the dedicatory exercises are discussed with all absorbing interest. It is especially significant to them that anything which has happened there for a long period, as it became the attention of the whole country upon that historic spot.

"It will serve to strengthen the bonds of friendship between Germany and Sweden, for the two countries unite in paying tribute to the memory of the great monarch, making it essentially a military demonstration.

"The Crown Princes of Germany and of Sweden are expected and among the speakers will be Archbishop Ekman of Sweden and the Archbishop of the Lutheran Church of Germany.

The American Lutheran Synod of America, which represents the Swedish Lutheran Church in the United States, has sent Rev. S. G. Ottman as its special delegate to the dedication."

HEAVY EARLY VOTE IS CAST IN CITY

mittee declared that Hisgen's vote would nearly equal Whitney's.

Pearl street, Broadway and C streets—Moran and Hisgen are both making good showing here. At 8 o'clock 160 votes had been cast.

Out of a registration of 5,800, over 1,900 had voted at 11:30 o'clock.

WARD 14.

At 8 o'clock about one-third of the total registration had been voted, with Moran and Donovan running strong. In precinct 1 Aldermen Parker was said to be running cane out early.

Over half of the 4,800 registered voters had cast their ballots by 11:30. The Republican leaders made a special effort to get out their full strength for Webster.

WARD 15.

Moran is polling a big vote in all precincts. Hisgen is receiving good support, especially in precincts 2, 5 and 6.

About 2,200 men had voted in this ward by 11:30, out of the 4,500 registered. The Republican vote was unusually heavy.

WARD 18.

Both Moran and Hisgen are polling a big vote. The ward is Democratic, but Hisgen's total is predicted to equal that of Whitney.

WARD 20.

Up to 9:30 4,200 votes had been cast. Much to the surprise of many of the politicians General Bartlett is receiving a large complimentary vote. In precinct 2 the votes are rolling up a large majority for Bartlett. In 3, 4 and 5 Precinct 2 the home precinct of Matthew Cummings, Superintendent of the Street Cleaning Department, the vote is heavy.

WARD 21.

Moran is getting a large vote. There is much splitting of ballots for the heads of the tickets, with both Republicans and Democrats supporting Hisgen. This ward is usually Republican.

WARD 24.

A good-sized Hisgen and Moran vote was reported during the early hours. Seavey was reported to be leading Donovan for sheriff. Three thousand of the hundred votes were cast up to 9:30 a. m.

CHELSEA.

In Chelsea the local Independence League workers are spending to-day rounding in voting votes for the Moran end. The Chelsea Leaguers are working well also for Albert Marr of Chelsea, the League candidate for the First Suffolk Senatorial district; and for William Bohan and Thomas Suppo, candidates for Representative.

The Chelsea Democrats in the lower wards are rutting Donovan for Seavey in the shrievalty contest, Seavey having several court house employes living in those wards. All over the district the vote averages normal.

NEWTON.

In Newton a very heavy vote is being polled. Over half the total registration had been voted by 11 o'clock in Ward 7, and in one precinct of Ward 6 two-thirds of the electors had cast their ballot at this hour.

NEW BEDFORD.

NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 5.—Voting is light here so far, the bill voters not having cast before 11 a.m. In the Eighth District there is a hot fight for Representative, which will probably bring out heavy balloting before the polls close.

MALDEN.

Voting began early in Malden and is keeping up in a manner that indicates one of the heaviest polls of recent years. There is much talk to the effect that Hisgen will run second on the ticket, leading on the Democratic ticket. This city is normally three-fourths Republican and one-fourth Democratic, but several calculations are being upset this year by the strength of the Independence League showing.

BROOKLINE.

One of the Democratic leaders of Brookline declared at noon to-day that Hisgen and Brown would poll a vote of unexpected size in that town.

Brookline there are 4,500 registered voters, of whom 2,100 had cast their ballots before 10:30 o'clock, including returns of a large vote.

G. Warren Briggs, chairman of the Democratic Committee, said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter that he was confident Whitney would poll as large a vote as the Democratic candidate did five years ago.

CAMBRIDGE.

The three City Committee chairmen in Cambridge gave out the following statements this noon:

Alvin M. Richards, Independence League: "We are polled 1,201 voters in the Independence Leaguers. We are going to triple that."

William R. Davis, Republican: "Gulliver will carry Cambridge by 2,000."

Edward W. Wass, Democrat: "In spite of all the difficulties I expect Whitney to carry Cambridge by 2,000."

MELROSE.

Voting started in so heavy in Melrose that by 10 a. m. more ballots had been cast than the total of last year. It was expected that a good poll would be made, but the leaders are surprised at the rate at which the voters come out. As in Malden, there is a fear that Hisgen will run by the Democratic vote and land second on the ticket.

SALEM.

The early voting to-day was light. A heavy vote, however, was looked for before the polls closed.

SOMERVILLE.

Voting in the seven wards in Somerville was light for the first hour after the polls opened. After 7 o'clock there was considerable activity around the polling booths, but this fell off and the vote will be 25 per cent. lower than at the State election a year ago. Up to 10 o'clock today the total vote polled in the seven wards was estimated at about 4,000. There was a vote cast for John J. Higgins, candidate for district attorney of Middlesex County.

LYNN.

There was early evidence that ward-ingmon would pile up a good vote for E. Gerry Brown, the Independence League candidate for Lieutenant Governor, and that Hisgen for Governor would make a big showing.

LOST WOMAN OF QUINCY IS SAFE IN MAINE

Mrs. Amanda Harsila, who strangely disappeared from her home at Quincy last Wednesday, has been heard from at Monson, Me., where she is staying with her brother, Jesse Williamson. The woman is written to her husband Gustof Harsila.

Mrs. Harsila gave no explanation of her reason for leaving her home at No. 17 Hillside avenue, Quincy Point. Wednesday last the police of Quincy and the neighbors of the Harsilas have been searching for her. She was last seen hurrying a baby carriage with her two children in the woods near the West Quincy railroad station.

In her letter Mrs. Harsila gave no explanation of her reason for leaving her home. She is visited Hillside avenue, Quincy Point, her two children, one four years and the other eighteen months old, she forced up her husband's watch, the picture of herself and the children and a few other valuables. She wheeled the baby carriage along the railroad tracks for a piece, on one occasion forcing an engineer to stop his train to prevent killing her. She she got to Monson is still a mystery.

VINCENT CLUB GIRL MARRIES HARVARD MAN

The initial and one of the most important of November weddings was that of noon to-day, of Constance Amory, elder daughter of Mrs. George W. Amory and a grand-daughter of the late Judge George Lyon Bigelow, and Alexander Phillip Wadsworth. The ceremony, which was witnessed by only the immediate families and a few of the more intimate friends, took place at noon at the home of the bride's mother on Beacon street, the Rev. Dr. Reginald Heber Howe, rector of the Church of Our Saviour in Longwood, officiating.

Tall, dark, distinguished, the bride wore a gown of white liberty satin trimmed with old family lace and a lace veil fastened to the coiffure with a cornet of orange blossoms. She was unattended and was given in marriage by her mother. Elliot Wadsworth was his brother's best man and there were no ushers.

Miss Amory is a member of the Vincent club, and was for some time looked upon as the star dancer and singer in the club's annual entertainment. She is a sister of Miss Lisa Amory, who is as striking a blonde as she is a brunette.

Mr. Wadsworth is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Oliver P. Wadsworth of Beacon street, a Harvard '02 man and a prominent member of the Tennis and Racquet Club.

The engagement was announced from Europe last July. The young people are abroad and were in France when the announcement was made. After a short wedding tour they will join the exclusive little colony if "newly-weds" in Milton.

TO DEFEND ORPHEUM HORSE IN COURT

A mechanical horse which is creating all sorts of laughter at the Orpheum this week has become the subject of litigation. Mr. Ellis of the Ellis-Nowlan troupe yesterday received a letter from Mr. C. Ludwig, the New York attorney, stating that he had been ordered by J. F. Stirling to attach the "Bright Boy" horse in question, claiming that the horse is an infringement on a patent copyright. "I do not see how they make that out," said Mr. Ellis last evening, "for I am willing to wager anything that there isn't a horse on earth like ours. We shall certainly defend our horse in the courts."

Hunt Chauffeur in Baker Case for Clue to Poison Mystery

DRIVER FOR RICH BOSTON CLUBMAN IS NOW SOUGHT BY DETECTIVES.

Believing that he can throw some light on the mystery surrounding the death from chloral hypnotic of Walter F. Baker, the rich Boston clubman, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Hurd in Bogota, N. J., Pinkerton detectives are to-day trying to locate Mr. Baker's chauffeur, Joseph Gilbert, of Abington, Mass.

Gilbert is thought to have driven Mr. Baker around New York in an automobile the night he was given the drug which caused his death.

"Make every effort to locate Gilbert is the message that came to Edward F. Baker, of No. 209 Newbury street, from the Pinkerton headquarters in New York to-day. "It is very important that we learn everything he knows that we have everything he knows about Mr. Baker's movements the night he was drugged."

Denies Finding Will.

Edward Baker held a long conference with some New York men at his Newbury street home to-day and later got into consultation with the officials at the Boston office of the Pinkertons.

The stories printed that my brother's will has been found are untrue," said Edward Baker to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day, "and it is also a falsehood that he left a will on dollars. His estate I know is worth $300,000 and no more."

Confirmed by recent discoveries in connection with Walter Baker's death that he was murdered by persons who were interested in the distribution of his estate, Edward Baker declares that arrests may be made to-day.

Detectives, employed by Mr. Baker, are looking for Miss Catherine Bell, a well-known actress, who played with Dustin Farnum in "The Virginian," she is not connected with the case in any way, but was a friend of Walter F. Baker and it is expected that she may be able to tell something of interest in relation to the friendships of the dead man and persons who are under the surveillance of the agents of Mr. Baker.

Three trunks, containing the effects of my dead brother, have arrived in Boston from Bogota, N. J., having been shipped from the home of Frank Hurd, where he died. I have received confirmation from the New York attorney of the Hurds that all his possessions have been shipped here, but that is not so.

Warned His Brother.

"I have found that valuable papers concerning his trust fund are missing. I have found that several photographs are lacking of himself, of New York and New Jersey girls and gentlemen friends, are also missing. He had all these, I am positive, when at last went to New York.

"I know that he carried along with him several demands from a certain New York woman upon him for money. One of the demands was for $750, and the others, extending over a period of one year, were for lesser sums. These are missing, so I am sure, had to do with Mrs. ——. I believe that this woman had some powerful hold over him when she could demand money like that. I have evidence that she is her own attorney in writing all the love notes signed to them. If Pinkertons have all letters I know about by.

"I told him to beware of her, but he disregarded me. I know that when he received these demands for money he complied several times by sending a check to her husband. His receipts and everything else connected with this phase of the case are gone.

"I have been unable to find where my brother's will was drawn and I believe those papers will be destroyed if there is no delay. I do not wish any arrests to be made, however, until there is more evidence, so conclusive that there cannot possibly be any slips."

Checks made out by Walter F. Baker to the order of Frank Hurds are now being back to the banks in this city where Mr. Baker had his account. Several of these checks have come to light in Mr. Baker's check at Bogota.

Malcolm A. Lawrence, the New York lawyer for the Hurds and by Mrs. Hurd Young, to whom Baker was attentive, declared yesterday:

"I think this whole thing is being stirred up by the friends relatives of the late Mr. Baker. I believe they have hopes of fastening a charge of foul play will that might have been left by Mr. Baker."

MRS. HURD AND CHILDREN.

Little boy, George B. Hurd, 2nd, aged six, was a favorite of Walter F. Baker; little girl, Nathalie, aged three and a half, is named after Mrs. Young, sister of her mother.

WHOLE TOWN TURNS OUT TO GREET HISGEN

HOMECOMING OF LEAGUE LEADER TO WEST SPRINGFIELD MARKED BY ENTHUSIASM.

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 5.—Thomas L. Hisgen, Independence League candidate for Governor, brought his campaign to a close here last night among his neighbors. He had intended to rest after his big demonstration Saturday evening in Tremont Temple, but his friends insisted on a meeting here, and the whole community men, women and children, turned out to do honor to their fellow townsman.

More than 700 crowded into the Town Hall, while as many more stood outside, and for four long hours it was one grand round of cheers for Mr. Hisgen.

March of Triumph.

Previous to the rally there was a parade and the demonstration all along the route from Mittineague to Merrick and back to the Town Hall was a march of triumph. In Merrick windows were raised and men and women joined in shouting "Vote for Tom Hisgen."

Mr. Hisgen spent not taking part in the parade, for the 4 o'clock train out of Boston on the Boston & Albany road, as he terms it, was, as usual, so long late in reaching Springfield.

Mr. Hisgen arrived at half way and joined in just having had any supper or having had time to visit his family. The Chicopee drum corps headed the procession and red fire and fireworks were in evidence all along the route.

Republican Meeting Called.

But it was at the Town Hall where Mr. Hisgen was given the most tremendous greeting. Republicans, Democrats and Independence Leaguers composed the gathering and joined alike in the applause and cheering.

Every time Mr. Hisgen's name was mentioned by the early speakers it was followed by a burst of applause.

The Republican town committee, in session in another part of the building, adjourned in order that its members might hear Mr. Hisgen speak.

The town selectmen were also present, while here and there about the hall were freshmen, gaunt with coal and all, who had stolen away from the freight yard to hear Friend Tom.

Leaders Forgot Party Ties.

They had no time to wash up but they knew how they would be made welcome and they came. Mr. Hisgen has a soft spot in his heart for the trainmen and he addressed more than one remark to them during the evening.

At the close of the rally three rousing cheers and a tiger were given for Mr. Hisgen and the prominent men of the town irrespective of party crowded to the platform to shake hands with him and wish him success.

It was freely prophesied on all sides that Tom Hisgen will stampede the town at the polls.

Richard J. Talbot was chairman and introduced J. C. Auerbach of Boston as the first speaker. Mr. Auerbach told what the Republican and Democratic parties once stood for and of how they had degenerated until they were masses of corruption

Ramsdell Takes up Bates.

He told of the principles of the Independence League and urged his hearers to vote for Isaac and for a whole man, Thomas L. Hisgen.

Ex-Mayor Walter L. Ramsdell of Lynn told some interesting stories and made a strong address. In a letter to ex-Governor John L. Bates, he said: "Mr. Bates, at a rally over the river, Saturday night, called the Independence League a corporation and not a party. I want to say that he said something which was misleading and which he knew to be false.

"The Independence League is a political party operated for the people, for which Mr. Bates himself signed when he was Governor, the love law. By that law a party must poll a vote of three per cent. to be recognized on the ticket the following year.

"The Independence League last year polled over a nine per cent. vote and is therefore a recognized political party and Mr. Bates knows it."

"Yes," said Hisgen. "It is too bad. The only way I know to remedy this thing is to change the administration. We ought to have people at the State House who have the interest of the great traveling public at heart.

"We ought to have some one there to force the railroads to give us decent treatment."

"That's what I say," shouted the stranger, "and do you know what I'm going to do?"

"What are you going to do?" was asked.

"I'll tell you, I'm going to vote for that man, Hisgen—I'm sick of these fakirs who make a pretence of doing things and never do them."

"Shake," said Hisgen. "I think you are right."

"Are you for Hisgen?" asked the man. "I am Hisgen," he replied, and then there was a cordial talk which lasted until the train came.

SOME STORIES ABOUT THE REAL "TOM" HISGEN

A number of amusing little incidents and stories are being told regarding Thomas L. Hisgen during his campaign tour of the State. Some of the most interesting follow:

Mr. Hisgen speaks German fairly well. He gets it from one of his ancestors and from his experience on the road when he was a salesman for one of the commodities he manufactures.

When he first started in the campaign he was asked to drop into the German Turn Verein in Springfield. He did so and was introduced to a number of the members. Finally a young man came up and said:

"Say, Mr. Hisgen, I been hearing about you and I read in the German paper that you are a friend of us. I have four brothers and all five are going to vote for you. But I don't think you really speak German—do you?"

Mr. Hisgen then recited a German poem in which there is a difficult dialect—a dialect of the street—when he had finished the man rushed up to him and exclaimed:

"Ach, you speak better than I do—you are all right!"

* * *

Discovered by Honesty.

Mr. Hisgen got on a car at the corner of Bunker and Washington streets on Saturday after he had reached this city from Springfield. The conductor walked through the car once giving him a sharp look, but not asking for his fare.

The second trip of the conductor Hisgen caught him by the arm.

"I think you missed my fare," said the genial leaguer, handing the conductor a nickel.

The conductor took the fare, walked back to the platform of the car, eyed the passenger who had given up without force a few minutes and returned.

"Say," remarked the conductor, "you look like that feller Tom Hisgen."

"That's my name," replied the passenger.

"Are you the man running for Governor?"

"I am."

"Well," responded the conductor, "now I know why they call you 'Honest Tom' Hisgen and you are going to get my vote."

* * *

A Lift from Elevator Man.

Mr. Hisgen's fare has become so well known in Boston that he is recognized on the street, in the hotel corridors and about every place he goes. He was by the elevator of one of the large buildings of the city a few days ago and when the elevator man asked for the floors Hisgen replied in his quiet way:

"Third floor, please."

The elevator man looked at him a moment and then with a smile said:

"I'd like to see you off on Beacon Hill."

"Thank you," said the astonished candidate.

"I'll give you one vote, at least," said the elevator man.

This Man Knew What to Do.

Mr. Hisgen stood on the platform of the railway station in Springfield a few days ago waiting for a train on the Boston & Albany. The train was a few hours or so late. A man chased up and down the platform and at first he was quite angry. He stopped in front of Mr. Hisgen and let go the feelings in language unfit for preservation.

WESTON GOES INTO NEW YORK STATE TODAY

TORRINGTON, Conn., Nov. 5.—Confident that his could make New York state before the end of to-day, Edward Everett Payson Weston, the aged pedestrian who is striving to beat his record walk from Portland to Chicago forty years ago, resumed his tramp at five o'clock this morning. He had a rest of about five hours after a journey of twenty-one hours, during which he established a record of 77 miles. Weston, some gibs stiffened, but looked refreshed and was as confident as ever of reaching Chicago on time. He regards it as the surest thing that can happen that he will make Chicago two days ahead of his former record.

"Well, I surprised some of my friends last night," said Weston, "but I'm not surprised myself. I'm going to do still better this morning, as you will see by this journey. "I told you yesterday I intended to make a spurt this week and I intend next week to be seven further ahead of my schedule. I was a little tired after yesterday's tramp, but my feet are in splendid condition and my general physical condition is excellent.

The feature of Weston's journey was his reception by Mrs. Cowles, sister of President Roosevelt and wife of Commander Cowles of the United States Navy. At Farmington she met the pedestrian and gave him a sup of tea, in which she had beaten a raw egg. The ingredient Mrs. Weston received was at Waterbury, where 5,000 people and a squad of police escorted him to a hotel.

SUNKEN SHIP MAY BE BLOWN UP IN WATER

It is doubted that the old City of Birmingham, which now lies snaken in forty feet of water at the edge of the ship channel off Castle Island, can be raised at a sum at all in reason in comparison to the value of the vessel.

To-day Johnson & Higgins, the underwriters' agents; Captain Lewis, the owner for the Boston Tow Boat Company; Superintendent Collins of the Ocean Steamship Company, to which the vessel belongs, and E. H. Downing, Boston agent of the company, are holding a consultation to decide whether to raise the vessel or blow her up in the water.

The City of Birmingham, which was built nineteen years ago, lies so low in the water even at ebb tide that she cannot be pumped out, and to raise her it would be necessary to employ pontoons. This is an expensive job and the agents of the underwriters and the representatives of the company may decide that the old vessel would not justify this outlay. In that case she will be blown to pieces, as she is an obstruction to navigation where she now lies.

The government officials are to-day investigating the cause of the accident, and a search for the sunken scow, which is thought to have been responsible for the accident, will soon be begun.

BIG STORE'S GRAND GOLD MEDAL SALE

One of the most unique advertisements published in years is that in the American Sunday by the Houghton & Dutton Company, announcing a Grand Gold Medal Sale in honor of their 35th anniversary. It is very difficult nowadays to get anything new or original in an advertisement. The country is filled with merchants looking for some novel way of presenting their merchandise, or of drawing attention to their particular store out of the ordinary.

The Houghton & Dutton Company have succeeded in giving an unique presentation of great merit.

This house, established thirty-five years ago under the firm name of Houghton & Dutton, has always done a cash business. Manufacturers, jobbers and importers seek for cash and the cash house.

In this way, Houghton & Dutton claim they not only can, but do buy at a cheaper margin than houses that have to wait long periods before they get their money from their customers.

A stringent money market has no terrors for a cash house. As the goods are sold the money comes in. The small beginning of two departments that has become the sixty departments of to-day, with the immense floor space, claimed to be the largest of any department store in New England, is something the firm thinks well worthy of commemorating, and well worthy of public attention.

Houghton & Dutton Company this year has received the blue ribbon and a gold medal from the city of Boston for the splendid civic spirit shown during Old Home Week. They have also won honor in athletics, as their baseball team won the championship of the Dry Goods Baseball League and the BOSTON AMERICAN cup.

They have likewise received thirty-five forty medals in gold for having sold the largest amount of goods during the year of the great manufacturing houses of the country.

Houghton & Dutton also publish in their announcement Sunday, letters of Congratulation from many different manufacturers, all commending them for their great sales and for their commending the house for having come to the aid of the goods of first quality.

For their anniversary sale the firm offers an array of bargains rarely equalled by any other great advertising announcement of this country. No household economist can afford to neglect such an unusual shopping event.

ALFONSO TOOK DUMMY BABE ON BRITISH VISIT

KING OF SPAIN FEARED TO RISK HIS LIFE AND HEIR'S AT THE SAME TIME.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—It is learned from a trustworthy diplomatic source that the baby brought to England with the King and Queen of Spain was not the genuine royal infant, but a dummy.

The real heir apparent came some days ahead of its parents, it having been decided that it would be taking too great a risk for the King and his Queen to travel together, in view of the possibilities of an Anarchist outrage or even an accident.

When this ruse was being decided upon, the contingency of the identity of the royal infant being concealed, if its parents and Queen of Spain were killed, was carefully considered, and a formal state paper was prepared, duly attested by high officials and court authorities at Madrid, setting forth the circumstances. In case of such a contingency the real heir to Madrid will also be secretly arranged.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON AND NURSE REPORTED WED

By Boston American Leased Wire.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 5.—A report has reached here from New London that Clifford S. Heinz, youngest son of H. J. Heinz, the millionaire pickle manufacturer, eloped and was married to Miss Virginia Campbell of New York, a trained nurse, she has spent the last three years in Columbus, O. The marriage is alleged to have taken place last Saturday in New London.

"I do not know anything about it," said H. J. Heinz. "I hope it is not true. I do not know the lady whose name has been connected with that of my son. I am trying to establish communication with Clifford in New York. I want to see met him to-day at the Jamestown dr. I am grieved over the fact that e did not see me into the confidence if the report is correct."

On Friday Clifford told his father he would go to New York and visit his sister, Mrs. John G. Given, who was formerly Irene Heinz. Mrs. Given to-day advised her father that her brother had not been to see her last Saturday.

H. J. Heinz is rated in wealth as worth $25,000,000. He is president of the Pennsylvania Sunday School Association. Clifford Heinz, the youngest son, is twenty-three years of age, as is Miss Campbell.

Mr. Heinz said his son had a predilection for trained nurses.

ARREST NEAR IN MYSTERY OF SLAIN WOMAN

Special to the Boston American.

WOBURN, Nov. 5.—State and police are to-day drawing the net closer about the man suspected of killing Mrs. Sarah Hagins, housekeeper for George Stubbs, the Burlington farmer. The woman's body was found Saturday night in the cellar of the Stubbs house. An arrest is expected at any time to-day.

Dr. Harrison G. Blake of Woburn, who conducted the autopsy on the woman's body, reports his finding in a written report to-day to District Attorney George A. Sanderson of Middlesex County, and to Judge Edward F. Johnson of the Woburn Court. Dr. Blake has refused to give any intimation of the nature of his report.

State Police Called In.

The State police were called into the case, however, during the progress of the autopsy, which was attended by Sergeant Walter Skelton of Burlington and Constable Hall.

Detective Lynch of the State Police, with Sergeant Skelton, went to the woman's home, reports his finding in a written report to-day to the circumstances of the woman's death, the finding of the body, etc.

The following statement is given out by Dr. Blake:

"I believe the man I saw at my house on Thursday, which was the last day I saw Sarah silve, had something to do with the death. He looked like an Italian, was smooth-faced and of slight build, and wore dark clothing and a cap. He ran away when I entered the kitchen.

"The woman's body had been drinking. She was very ugly. I ate my dinner, and immediately left the house.

Found Body in Cellar.

"At 10:30 o'clock, Saturday night, I finished reading my paper and started for the cellar to get the metal Sunday pans. I got potatoes and then went to find the door locked and bolted from the outside. I had trouble getting out, but I went downstairs, and stumbled over the woman. She was dead. The rest I have already told."

3 CHURCHES BOOST BAKED BEAN SUPPERS

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Nov. 5.—The price of baked bean suppers has been increased from fifteen to twenty cents at the same time by the three local churches under whose auspices they are conducted every two weeks. Some of the best patrons of the suppers are now wondering if the committees from all the churches had a run-together and decided to raise the price. Anyway, the notice of an increase appeared simultaneously in the advertisements of all three churches.

"In order to make a profit we had to make this increase, owing to the increased cost of materials," explained Mrs. A. T. Parker, wife of the town treasurer. She is on the committee of Trinity Congregational church. The other churches whose committees have raised the price are Grace Episcopal and First Baptist churches.

THIS AGONY WILL DRIVE ME INSANE

—RAYMOND HITCHCOCK

LONDON, Nov. 5.—"This agony can't last, you know, for it will either drive me mad or I must end it by a journey somewhere."

Such is a sentence in a letter from Raymond Hitchcock, the actor, to a friend in Paris, which is published here; a most significant sentence in view of the disappearance from New York of the comedian, resting under such frightful accusations.

The letter is addressed from Hector's, Rodway, New York, and runs:

"It is a hard matter to write you under existing circumstances, and may I tell you I have refrained from corresponding with anyone while under this terrible cloud.

"I write you, old man, because in the fourteen odd years you have known me, the good with the bad, you have found me to be a man in every sense of the word, and I know you believe in me.

"You don't believe this thing, do you? I walk to the theatre, and although I am given the cold hand, I can feel my friends are in doubt and I can't bear it. I can't thank you adequately for your dear old cable; I could do with a few more friends like you.

"And can you imagine me living under stress of this terrible charge, this humiliating slander? "I'm an old, old man, and I simply cannot write, so forgive me. Will see you some day.

"From your friend in need of friends. HITCH."

HEELERS TEAR MORAN POSTERS

James T. McKenney returned to his barber shop at No. 372 Neponset avenue, Dorchester, last night and found Boston Alderman Moran pictures in his window torn down and replaced by obscene pictures. The work had been done by ward heelers.

"If I found out who did it that I would make it hot for him," declared Mr. McKenney. "I am for John H. Moran first and last, and I propose to let my sentiments be known to the public. No honest man is afraid to let his choice be known, particularly when it is for such a fearless man."

With Montgomery and Stone as Stars, It Jumps Instantly Into Popular Favor.

What "Lohengrin" is to grand opera and "The Merchant of Venice" is to drama, "The Red Mill" is to musical comedy. For years Boston has been made the stamping ground for frothy musical shows, that depended almost entirely on legs and ruffles for success, until it seemed as if the composers had become empty-headed. The "Prince of Pilsen" and "Miss Modiste" were welcome rifts in the clouds, but when comes "The Red Mill," the best of them all.

Henry Blossom and Victor Herbert, who wrote "Miss Modiste," have struck twelve again. They have evolved a musical play that has an unusually strong and interesting story, wherein the musical numbers seem to logically fit, where the scenic environment is novel and delightfully artistic. Charles Dillingham has shown the good judgment to engage as comedians in the business—Montgomery and Stone—and give them free play for their fun-making. That they are a thousand times better than they were as the "Wizard of Oz" is only one unusual feature of the play.

Then, again, the girls are literally prize beauties, put into beautiful surroundings. Ethel Johnson, that effervescent mite of shapely humanity who dances like a sprite; Edna Fassett, who sings as well as she looks, and that is saying a lot; Alice Crater, smothers and goosbatters, and Mathie Verande, a coquettish Parisian impersonator—all these are principals who are busy all the time. Headed by Montgomery and Stone—and give them room to play—are Frank Moulan, as Sergeant Bill Bolton; Louise Le Baron, as Gretchen, the lovely daughter of the burgomaster, Charles Ince, as the Sheriff, and Ned Nye, as the burgomaster, with Claude Cooper and David Torrence, have capital roles, and every detail of which they give full attention.

But over and above everybody tower Montgomery and Stone, clowns, as humorous musicians, as Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson, they fill every moment with spirited songs, snappy, grotesque dances, acrobatic feats and fun that is captivating in its spontaneity and that brings out roars of laughter.

Musically, "The Red Mill" is ideal. There are half a dozen songs that are unusually tuneful, and in the elevated trains and trolleys last night after the show these melodies were being whistled, which is a prime facie evidence of popularity. The single person in New England lets the "Red Mill" get by without hearing it, or the whistling does not prove it. As for Victor Herbert, he will rise to the occasion with "Sleeping Beauty and the Beast" at the Colonial next night.

STAGE FAVORITES PLAYING HERE

Constance Eastman, Gene Cole, Paula Desmond in "The Red Mill," Colonial.

Eleanor Gordon and Wilson Melrose in 'The Soudan,' at the Boston.

ISABEL SHERMAN'S GREAT TRIUMPH

Isabel Sherman scored a dramatic triumph at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday where she appeared in the powerful role of the Countess Lolo in "A Beautiful Friend." She proved herself wonderfully endowed for the part and received with Louis Bresee in the character of Count Feder Karadec five curtain calls of treachery and cunning around the hero and heroine.

The play deals principally with Russia, secret police and Nihilists. Conspicuous in the other roles were Clayton Legge as Ivan, the devoted lover, and Jane Stuart as Nadine, the arranged bride.

SEATS FOR "THE ROSE."

At the Majestic Theatre on Thursday morning seats will go on sale for the engagement of "The Rose of the Rancho," which Mr. Belasco is sending to Boston for its first road engagement after a year and a half in New York city. The same company will be in support of Miss Frank Lea Starr as was seen here originally.

EVERYONE LAUGHED AT "KING CASEY"

Johnny and Emma Ray in their new comedy, "King Casey," written specially for them by Aaron Hoffman, kept the audience of the Globe Theatre in a continuous uproar. Johnny Ray as Dan Casey and Pat Casey provoked so much laughter when they temporarily changed parts that the very walls of the theatre seemed to laugh out. In the first act Johnny Ray acted the part as dressup at the Waldorf-Astoria, and in the second act he is King Casey of the island of Lolla in Zazza. He is assisted by Emma Ray as Gaelic Mike, who impersonates a Jewish fellow in search of a title, and who fails in love with a real king, which is in itself the cause of much merriment. John R. Morris as Rocky Mountain Jack, a crack shot from the West, keeps things moving at a lively pace. Among the song hits of the piece are "Down Where the Old Cherry Tree," "My Dixie Girl," "Strongheart," "Tell Me, You Blow," "Uncle Sam Land" and "Prairie Mary."

'THE SOUDAN' GETS PRAISE 'IN BARRELS'

Manager, Company and Stage Director Elected by Unanimous Ballot.

Lovers of the "real thing" in melodrama should not miss "The Soudan" at the Boston Theatre this week. After they have seen it, no matter what their political affiliations may be, they will cast one ballot for Lindsay Morison. How he ever managed to plan this stupendous production in the face of one play a week, and to put on a "first night" that didn't have a hitch in it, was the wonder of every spectator at last night's performance. A word, too, of praise for W. E. Shafer, the stage manager, who is responsible for that finished nicety which marks the play's presentation from start to finish.

And more praise, barrels of it, for the company—every actor and actress in it worked last night in a manner that would do credit to a band of Broadway favorites in their "two hundredth consecutive" presentation. And for that allegorical cheering and howling mob who greeted their superior brother soldiers! They are born actors—super actors, of course. The civilian—garrulously that little Irish-English chap who had a mania for grabbing his neighbors' caps and throwing them into the air—were one of the strongest features of the entire production.

"The Soudan," as it was presented last evening could not have been given in this city on any stage other than that at the Boston Theatre. The stage's dimensions and possibilities were revealed last night as they never were before. For the effects things the play is probably the most stupendous ever seen in Boston. Picture Trafalgar square, London, lined with men, women and children, all wildly cheering a host of returning soldiers—sixty-five of them. The "merry villagers," who did the "welcome to our city" music could not be counted, so rapidly did they move about, but their number was way over the half century mark.

In their respective roles no individual member could be excelled. Wilson Melrose made himself beloved more than ever in Boston theatregoers in his portrayal of the role of Captain Temple. Eleanor Gordon, as Nellie Temple, was the sweetest heroine imaginable. Donald Meek did his best work of the season as Horatio Sparkins. Theodore Friebus was a magnificent villain. For the rest—all the names of the Boston Theatre Stock Company—one can be nothing but praise—mountains of it.

PLAYS THAT STAY ANOTHER WEEK

Friends and admirers of Thomas Wise and Truly Shattuck, the stars in George Broadhurst's musical farce "The Lady from Lane's," have been crowding the Majestic since the beginning of the engagement. The play is now in its final week and the audiences show no sign of diminishing in size. Mr. Wise and Miss Shattuck have never had more congenial roles than those of the San Francisco millionaire on a party with his wife, and the fascinating Miss Agnes Mahr, a clever toe dancer, and an assistant, find an exciting time with Zeno in the Big City Four won tremendous applause with a number of new songs and pictures by the kinetograph complete the programme.

Palace Theatre

Those who admire feminine beauty will find a feast in store for them at the Palace Theatre this week where Al Reeves's big beauty show, with Alaska Fowler, Al Reeves, Andy Lewis and many comedians furnish the fun. The vaudeville bill is one of the best ever given at the Palace. It comprises Andy Lewis and Maude Elliott in "Won at the Wire;" the Eight English Bright Lights, the Sacco Quartette, Edward Morris, comedian; Blance Martin and Mae Powers, singers and dancers, and Al Reeves, champion banjoist. The Palace company presents the Harrington offering performers; Lorens and Lewis, vaudeville artists; Billy Kinkaid, comedian and mimic; Patchen and Chilton, comedy acrobats, and Alfred C. Harrington, comedy gymnast.

Lyceum Theatre

The calibre of the "Dainty Duchess" is too well known to need lengthy comment. Barely is seen such a royal display of female charms, tuneful numbers, gorgeous costumes, beautiful scenery and clever comedians as Weber and Rush have crowded into this one show. They have evidently spared no expense to make this organization one of the very best. There's a continual display of all that is admired by lovers of good bright musical comedy. Among the prominent numbers are Sean-ion and Stevens, Heinie May, Morris and Kramer and Keeler and Hawley.

PICTURES AT THE HUB.

The bill this week at the Hub Theatre contains plenty of laughs, the usual number of dramatic pictures with beautiful settings and the usual variety of songs handled by artists. Miss Rae White, the little girl soprano, was decided hit in a new number called "Miss Killarney," while Mr. and Mrs. Graves and Mr. Mack, singing respectively "To Te, Au Revoir," and "It Takes a Long Pull, Strong Pull and Good By," received many encores. The ladies' orchestra made things lively musically.

PRETENTIOUS PRODUCTION OF "LOHENGRIN"

Castle Square Company Sings Wagnerian Opera With Remarkable Evenness.

A pretentious production is the Castle Square Opera Company's "Lohengrin," which opened a week's engagement to a crowded house last night. Frank N. Manderville, the musical director, did wonders with his company, which included an augmented orchestra which played with artistic finish. The very difficult opera was played and sung with remarkable evenness for a first night of a stock company. Clara Lane sang Elsa. She made the most of her opportunities passed, but it is no discredit to say that she did not rise completely to the dramatic climaxes. The soprano who can do full justice to Elsa can be numbered on the fingers. George Tallman answers all that is demanded in Lohengrin as a stage picture and he sang the tenor role very smoothly and tenderly, but his voice failed to respond in full strength to some of the passages. Miss Louise LeBaron's rich contralto was very effective, and Frank J. Doane, the actor who is under a special engagement for the Boston Opera House, as Frederic de Telramund was satisfactory. Mr. Doane was cast as the Herald. A large chorus has been engaged for the week and the effects of the "Lohengrin" and has been well schooled. The orchestra was very effective in the entire act and wedding music opening Act III.

WILD STEER HAS RACE ON STAGE

With the hero lashed to the back of a wild steer, dashing across the stage at breakneck speed, and the fair Indian maiden, Silver Heels, on the villain's fleet-footed broncho close behind, ready with knife in hand to end his foe, "Cowboy Cowboy and the Squaw," at the Grand Opera House this week, is a "thriller" from start to finish. Shooting, daring bold-ups and desperate rescues of the hero and his sweetheart make up the drama.

Brooks Hollis, the hero, is in love with Ruth Tompkins, the "girl" from the East, and Broncho Bill, the bloodthirsty villain, manages to get her in his power. Several times he has her concealed in a log cabin, a mountain cave, but each time at the right moment, just as he says, "Kiss mah, or I'll kill you," the hero appears, and after flourishing his trusty revolver, which he always carries at his side, he villain beats a hot retreat, and the "girl" is once more with her lover.

The part of the Indian chief, played by Hugh E. Thompson, and Silver Heels, his daughter, by Dorothy Lyons, are, perhaps, the cleverest interpreting parts in the show, but Silver Heels is killed at the end of the melodrama and the audience weeps, for it will be long, for the lovers are united, married, and live happily ever after, while the villain is strung up to a tree. The wild steer was also trained to perform many clever tricks, and was a large one last night. The play is here for a week, and should attract all those who love excitement.

O'NEILL COMES NEXT WEEK

James O'Neill comes to the Globe Theatre next week in three classic plays, presented for the first time in Boston. Monday evening and Thursday evening, "Monte Cristo;" Tuesday evening, "Beverly of Graustark;" Wednesday matinee and Saturday evening, and "Julius Caesar" Wednesday and Friday evenings and Saturday matinee.

RETURNS BETWEEN ACTS.

From the stage of almost all of the local theatres the election returns will be read to-night, between the acts, and there will be many local hits perpetrated at some of the performances.

HUB GIRL SAYS PRETTY WIDOW WON HUSBAND

PITTSFIELD, Nov. 5.—Lillian B. Clarke of Charlestown has brought suit against Flora Markham Senn of Lee, to recover $20,000 for the alleged alienation of the affections of her husband, Orlando A. Clarke.

Mrs. Senn is the daughter of Louis Markham, a Lee contractor, and is the widow of Harvey W. Senn, formerly station agent at Lenox. She was married twelve years ago. Senn died two years ago leaving her an estate of $10,000. She is about thirty-three and a pretty blonde.

Before her marriage she was one of the most popular saleswomen in Lee. For a time after her husband's death she was employed as a stenographer in Boston, but is now working as teacher in a Lowell business college. She lives at 201 Chestnut street, Lowell.

Mrs. Senn was interested in church work and was a regular attendant at St. George's in Lee where she met Clarke, who was also interested in church matters and was somewhat of a singer, having taken part in a number of church socials at Lee.

Up to a short time ago he had been employed at one of the paper mills here.

EXECUTION OF BILLEK HELD UP BY COURT

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Judge Barnes has agreed to sign a bill of exceptions that will bring a stay of execution probably until January for Herman Billek, sentenced to die Friday for the murder of four members of the Vorai family.

Sudden death supplied a big sensation in the case at the eleventh hour to-day. William Nieman, husband of Mrs. Emma Nieman, the woman whose testimony convicted Billik of the murder by poison of four members of the Vorai family, died under circumstances that will lead to a coroner's investigation.

Mrs. Nieman denies all knowledge of her husband's death.

The defense during Billik's trial tried unsuccessfully to fix the blame for the four murders on Mrs. Nieman.

TWO EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Nov. 5.—Two distinct shocks of earthquake were felt last night. Both passed from southeast to northwest.

VAUDEVILLE FESTIVAL IS A TRIUMPH

Tremont Theatre

If Klaw & Erlanger give patrons of the Tremont "advanced vaudeville" bills such as that developed this week, they will never want for patronage. The vaudeville festival which "The Storm Rider" initiated is a festival, indeed. Hetty King, the bewildered "man" in English attire, proved a claim, and had the big audience "going." They forced the act from her and again will wait she gave them the encore they demanded. Her songs are clever and in her clothes are perfect, and she wears them to the King's taste. Her delivery is as good as ever was, and it always was the best, but it showed, perhaps, a lack of good judgment to have sung the verses of a prize fight scene into their act. The "Knockout" was the song that got hundreds exclaiming, "Isn't it wonderful!" and deservedly so. The novel talking violin, added a touch of the unusual. Louis A. Simon and Grace Gardner have their familiar sketch, "The New Coachman," to give good body to the bill and get the crowd laughing uproariously. Cartell and Harris have an attractive and snappy act, which would be improved if Mr. Cartmull would refrain from singing. Cinquevalli returns to Boston with his juggling feats and his unusual exhibit. Tom and the La Vallis do their startling equilibrist act. The Zaretsky troupe of Russian dancers make a good opening for the bill, which is closed with motion views of the arrival of the Lusitania in New York harbor.

Columbia Theatre

"Dopey Dan in Turkey," with Charles Nichols and the Star Show girls in the cast, served to keep last night's audience at the Columbia thoroughly amused. The farce is ill that a burlesque never could desire. The last act was especially strong in every detail, the costuming calling forth the heartiest approval. With such players as Charles Nichols, Nanny Fairbanks, James C. Dixon, Marie Croix, Louie Lynn, Pert Mackey and Bert Lamont, the show could not be otherwise than entertaining, but the prettiness and good looks of those in the show was spoiled by the careless singing of the chorus girls, a matter that could easily be remedied. The military epoch was the biggest hit in the olio. Tonight Manager Farren will keep the doors open until the election returns are complete, the wrestling bout being put over until to-morrow night.

Keith's Theatre

The headliners at Keith's this week have their work cut out for them to hold premiere position. At the opening last night they were rivalled or even surpassed by the rank and file of the acts. "A Night on a House Boat," advertised as the season's novelty, needs all its sumptuous setting, dazzling scenic lights and unique house boat effect to boost a mediocre collection of songs, dances and what is evidently conceived to be artistic specialties. Camille D'Arville, good to look upon, would flat when she sang. Lambert's impersonation of great musicians, with piano, violin and viola solos, was an artistic treat, both for impersonation and music. Mahoney's monkeys raised a laugh, especially when one performer, only clever simian, rode a real bicycle, "round and 'round and 'round." John F. Hazard and Annie Leon sing stories. The Four Fords have a dancing turn that is well done. Ned Wayburn and Young add to the array of laugh-provokers with their sail, "The Gadding Goosipers." Agnes Mahr, a clever toe dancer, and an assistant, find an exciting time with Zeno in the Big City Four won tremendous applause with a number of new songs and pictures by the kinetograph complete the programme.

Howard Athenaeum

The 20th Century Maids—every one a graceful atom of femininity—were seen at their best yesterday at the old Howard. This merry company of girls may be aptly termed the pioneer of "advanced burlesque." The piece is styled "A Trip to Panama," and the girls certainly "made that fly." Specialties were introduced by Cornella and Eddie, acrobats; Fern Melrose, petite coon; Pauline Moran, soubrette; Carleton and Terry, comedians; Abe Sinclair, May Strahl and Billy Noble.

The Howard's own program comprise Marion and Pear, grotesque acrobats; Sam Brooks and Rose Jeanette; Harry Walton, in a Chinese impersonation; DeWitt Young and sister, in bouncing throwing, and Fagan and Merrium, songs and dances. Much interest was centered in the appearance of Leon La Joie, one of the Old Howard stock burlesquers, who gave a rare exhibition of contortion posing. Hascome, the illusionist; Lawrence and Dale, comedians; Billy Kinkaid, the juggler, and the Howardesque rounded up the bill. Election returns announced to-night.

Austin & Stone's Museum

The dark-skinned girls, who woo, decrobes and athlete of the "Life in the Orient" company were again featured yesterday. Princess Lolah made another terrific hit in her famous whirling dance, and El Alfredi, the toe-dancer, was fascinating. Other features were Burton and Gill, in eccentricities; English Punch and Judy, and the big snake.

On the stage were the Meadows comedy company; Arthur and Emma Christy, midget dancers; Dorothy Norton, in song and story; the Kittie Doll Sextet, selection-ers; O'Doyle and Thomas, black-face comedy; Florence Emmet, in illustrated songs; the Pas Ma La Trio, and animated pictures.

Orpheum Theatre

Eva Taylor, formerly leading woman at the Castle Square, and a clever supporting company, in the hilariously funny farce, "Chums," proved one of the biggest features on a strong laughing bill at the Orpheum. This talented actress in "chums" has a playlet built for laughing purposes only, and it admirably fills the mission. Marshall P. Wilder is the headliner, with a budget of new stories. Another laughing hit is the Ellis-Nowlan troupe with a trick horse that cuts up all kinds of capers. The Five Pirscoffis contribute a juggling act which is more than passing clever. Apparently there is nothing too difficult for this troupe of Parisians. Another comedy sketch, entitled "The Taming of the Beast," presented by Thomas Conkin and company, was another merry-maker. Al Wesson and Bessie Young add to the array of laugh-provokers with their sail, "The Gadding Gossipers." Agnes Mahr, a clever toe dancer, and an assistant, find an exciting time with Zeno in the Big City Four won tremendous applause with a number of new songs and pictures by the kinetograph complete the programme.

Palace Theatre

Those who admire feminine beauty will find a feast in store for them at the Palace Theatre this week where Al Reeves's big beauty show, with Alaska Fowler, Al Reeves, Andy Lewis and many comedians furnish the fun. The vaudeville bill is one of the best ever given at the Palace. It comprises Andy Lewis and Maude Elliott in "Won at the Wire;" the Eight English Bright Lights, the Sacco Quartette, Edward Morris, comedian; Blance Martin and Mae Powers, singers and dancers, and Al Reeves, champion banjoist. TOBIN CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF SHOE WORKERS

BROCKTON, Nov. 5.—John F. Tobin of Boston has been re-elected general president of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, the result of the general election being announced in this city late yesterday.

The other officers elected are: Vice-president, Collis Lovely of Lynn; secretary-treasurer, Charles L. Baine of Boston; general executive board, J. Cooperator of Montreal, G. E. James of St. Peris, Fred W. Lee of Chicago, and George Bury of Cincinnati; general auditor, George H. Comm of Rockland; delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention, Charles L. Baine of Boston, William Tiernan of Cincinnati, John D. Dollen of Lynn, and Warren M. Hatch of Boston.

No figures were given out. The election is reported there as a complete victory for the members of the union who have favored the administration of Mr. Tobin. Mr. Tobin's only opponent was William J. Emery of Detroit.

This marks the end of the contest begun in the union's election of 1906, when Thomas R. Hickey of Lynn declared that he was elected president over Mr. Tobin.

The claim was not sustained by the last convention of the union at Toronto, and a new election was ordered.

HEARST LONDON TIMES LETTER A BOMBSHELL

His Criticism of English Press Methods Creates National Commotion.

COLUMNS GIVEN TO REPLIES

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The London papers continue to be greatly exercised over William Randolph Hearst's cabled letter to the London Times, in which he severely criticised the news methods and the unfriendly attitude toward America of the English papers.

Mr. Hearst's letter to the Times is considered generally as the greatest bombshell tossed into England since the Venezuelan incident. So much space has not been devoted to an American topic in many years. Ordinarily the London newspapers dismiss the Presidential message with a half column editorial summary, but Mr. Hearst's letter to the Times struck all the English editors as being an unusually important declaration of American political policy. In fact, it almost dominates in news value, as is shown by the space given it.

The Daily Graphic devotes two columns of its principal news page to Mr. Hearst's letter. The Graphic heads its article "Hearst's Bombshell," declaring the letter to be the most barefaced attempt to capture the Irish vote of America since Cleveland's Venezuelan message. The London Standard, the chief organ of the Conservative party in England, and read by all the financial and commercial men of England, spreads the Hearst letter with collateral dispatches of comments over the two leading columns of its chief news page.

The Times, in addition to printing the letter, devotes a column to Mr. Hearst's letter, prints a long and prominent comment on rousing campaign and to Bishop Potter's declaration for Hughes's shrievalty election.

The London Daily News, the organ of the Conservative-Liberal masses of England, devotes its chief editorial, entitled "Twisting the Lion's Tail," to the subject. After reviewing Mr. Hearst's letter, the News says:

"Twisting the Lion's Tail."

"Peace is of public interest is the fact that Hearst, who is a possible candidate for the Presidency and the editor of a group of newspapers reputed to have 2,000,000 readers, should go out of his way to describe England as the historic enemy of his country and insinuate that we are likely to urge it upon her to make war upon her. Hearst, in short, is twisting the lion's tail, a method long used to be a common diversion during certain electioneering. In the present condition which he directs, Irish and German organizations have a claim, and it is for their votes that Hearst is playing.

"But the support of such a single-phobe minority would not be worth obtaining if the charges were likely to resent this spread-eagle attitude, and it is interesting to find that Hearst, the declared an enemy of Roosevelt, thinks it prudent to appropriate some of the political capital latest in his Pacific cruise and in the dispute with Japan.

Anti-English Feeling.

"Hearst is at least a successful student of public opinion, and unless it should turn out that in this case he has made a miscalculation, the existence of an anti-English feeling, which had nearly been forgotten, is evidently a factor to be reckoned with. Though the American quarrel with Japan has obviously some very ugly personalities, we have assumed, not still assume, that it is not likely to lead to war. It is rather a complication which Roosevelt has improperly used to foster up his demand for a strong navy, give point to his demand for a strong navy, but clearly there is an element in America which would welcome a quarrel with Japan merely on the ground that Japan is England's ally. Of this element it will always be possible for an unscrupulous demagogue to play.

A Salutary Warning.

"The remainder is salutary, because it is one warning the more to ourselves of the danger of allowing our feud with Germany to go unheeded, and, above all, of neglecting the solution of the Irish problem. The Irish and German vote in alliance with native American jingoism is strong enough to turn the scales against peace in any dispute in which we are even indirectly concerned.

"A stately game to play with this Anglophobia without intending to push the quarrel to the bitter penalty of war, but if behind him a newspaper trust which looks on war as a commercial speculation he may not find it altogether easy to stop. The incident has a moral for ourselves, but it may also be even more direct lesson for Roosevelt. His dispatch of the American fleets to the Pacific has unchained passions and expectations which he may find it difficult to control."

TWO HURT IN TRAIN CRASH

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 5.—A local passenger train leaving here at 6:35 on the Hartford Division of the New Haven road was in a head-on collision at 6:40 this morning with a freight locomotive drawing a caboose and freight car in the railroad cut near Cedar Hill. Conductor R. P. Christian of this city, who was in the caboose, suffered a broken leg and other serious injuries.

His fireman was also hurt.

Both engines were more or less smashed up and the platforms of the passenger cars were broken. The passengers were badly shaken up, but not hurt. The impact stood the caboose and freight car on end, where they stood bracing each other. Conductor Christian and his flagman were thrown the length of the caboose to the ground.

STRIKERS BACK IN LAWRENCE

LAWRENCE, Nov. 5.—All of the 2,200 striking Arlington mills operatives have returned to work, and are awaiting Agent Farnsworth's action in the matter.

After the weavers' vote to return, the strike was ended, but there remain an evil understanding between the mill officials and the operatives relative to Overseer Bolton's position, and a spark from a horse will take any action or not is a question.

WOMAN COFFIN DRUMMER.

WINSTED, Ct., Nov. 5.—Miss Ada Mad rah, one of the best salesmomen that ever stood behind a counter, has gone on the road to sell coffin trimmings, and is taking large orders.

The Problem of Becoming Head Dress for the "Short Dress" Miss Is Solved by These

Stylish Hats for Schoolgirls

PARTICULAR pains should be taken to acquire simple and pretty hats for young girls. These models are all suitable for the "short-frock" miss, and designed especially for the schoolgirl.

The first picture shows a smart white hat, with the brim very wide at the sides, made entirely of silk, with wide frills on either side, which are closely gathered where they are fixed to the crown, and are lightly fringed out at the edges. The brim is lined with ganged silk. It may be made in any shade, so that it could be matched to any coat or walking costume. Even damp weather would not make it get out of condition, and this is always an important consideration in choosing millinery for young girls.

Equally charming in its own way is a hat of soft white felt, with the brim turned up front face and caught with a large bow and ends of glace silk, which fall onto the crown.

A smart gray felt hat with a broad flat brim is simply trimmed with a fancy silk scarf in any color, and looks very well in gray.

Use Tact in Your Business

TACT is a great thing. It should be cultivated by every girl who contemplates entering the business field.

If at first one finds a position not to her liking she should not leave it in a huff. She may sometimes be glad to use the name of that firm as reference.

Endeavor, when possible, to merit the good will rather than the ill will of an employer.

The girl entering the business field should strive to make herself valuable in whatever work she is engaged, even if the place is only temporary.

Keynote of Success

THE keynote of success in business is to find out how your employer desires his work done, then to do it as near as possible that way.

Learn first of all not to obtrude your views or ideas unless they are asked for.

If you are a stenographer and find errors in grammar in the dictation which has been given you, correct and rearrange the sentences; but don't ever be so foolish as to call your employer's attention to his mistakes.

Silence Is Golden

NO man likes to be told by a mere slip of a girl that she has changed or corrected a mistake he made here and there in his dictation.

This is a case where silence is, indeed, golden.

Positions of trust rarely come to those who are content to rest on their oars and wait for something to happen, but rather in those who by constant effort are preparing themselves for something better.

Timely Tips for Home Dressmakers

USE a sharp, new sewing machine needle when stitching on taffeta silk: a needle which is the least bit blunted is sure to cause the unsightly puckering and drawing so often met with amateur work.

Dress for School Girl

A good serviceable school dress can be made from one of the new tweeds, which may be had in a variety of checks and stripes. Make the skirt with five or seven gored models, the stitched seams, the gores faring perceptibly from the knees downward.

Bands of White Chiffon

A effective trimming that is used very effectively on a white voile gown is of bands of white chiffon, with tiny folds of black chiffon applied at the edge outlined with gold beads.

Fulness in Sleeves

It is fashion that sleeves have a moderate fulness at the shoulders, and for the rest are full length or three-quarter, according to the character of the coat.

Venetian in Vogue

Broderie Anglaise seems less in vogue and has given way to rich Venetian or val. lace, which is used for entire gowns, or made of lace or in heavy serv net stiffened by bands of serv linen.

Effective Taffetas

There are effective shadow taffetas for linings, and some figured effects in plain and plaid designs that make them useful for foundations with transparent overdresses.

Trottoir Skirts Shorter

The trottoir skirt for street wear is much shorter than last season. For the trailing skirts the short model is the circular and all its modifications.

Buttons for Trimming

Where there is pleated front fulness laid upon the shoulders of a waist, the seams being open, use small buttons for the trimming of the pleats.

Cook Book Free For Choice Recipes

THE writer of every recipe printed below receives a copy of the BOSTON AMERICAN Economy Cook Book, a substantial indexed blankbook of 210 pages, bound in heavy oilcloth, especially designed to preserve these recipe gems in permanent form.

LAMB STEW

Two pounds of lamb, one quart of water, one tablespoon of rice, one pint of milk, two onions and two potatoes; add salt and pepper to taste and cook until tender.

MRS. F. J. SMITH.
No. 174 Main street, Stoneham.

FRUIT CUSTARDS

A pint and a half of fruit, stewed and strained, cooked and sweetened; six eggs well beaten and stirred into a quart of milk; mix the above and flavor with spice and bake in cups or a deep dish twenty minutes or half an hour, according to its size. This is very nice cold. It may be boiled in a tin pail in boiling water.

SPICED APPLE TARTS.

Rub stewed or baked apples through a sieve, sweeten them and add powdered mace and cinnamon enough to flavor them. If the apples are not very tart, squeeze the juice of a lemon in. Some persons like the rind of the lemon grated in it, until the crust is done. Little bars of that if could be matched to any coat or walking costume. Even damp weather would not make it get out of condition, and this is always an important consideration in choosing millinery for young girls.

Equally charming in its own way is a hat of soft white felt, with the brim turned up front face and caught with a large bow and ends of glace silk, which fall onto the crown.

A smart gray felt hat with a broad flat brim is simply trimmed with a fancy silk scarf in any color, and looks very well in gray.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

BY THE PROFESSOR.

THE old-fashioned definition of sleep was the sleep that is taken before midnight. Insomnia's sleep is the sleep a woman gets after she has slept seven hours and before she has slept nine, says a Viennese specialist.

A woman needs seven hours' sleep for the building up of her system. Then she needs two hours more for the recuperation of her body, and the extra two hours will restore her complexion, make her eyes bright, take the wrinkles out of her face and keep her form elastic.

The woman who wants to derive the fullest benefit from her beauty sleep will compose her mind before sinking off into slumber. She will think pleasant thoughts. Worrying thoughts make furrows in the brow and leave lines around the mouth.

A little light in the bedroom is a good thing for some people, for it will set cheerfully upon the nerves and drive away night mare.

Do not allow yourself to be wakened in the morning if you mean to get beauty sleep; or if you must be roused, let it be ever so gently. Do not wake up with a start, with an alarm clock, or those harsh sounds will jar the nerves and destroy some of the good the sleep has done you.

FALLING HAIR

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you please tell me of something which will stop my hair from falling out? When I comb my hair the comb is full of hair. I am a young man of twenty years. J. C.

MEN frequently wash their hair too much, thus keeping on all the natural oil, making it dry and finally causing it to fall out. Again, the health has much to do with the condition of the hair. Look to that first. If there is nothing wrong there you should be able to conquer the trouble by massaging the scalp nightly with a very little red vaseline and wiping off the surplus with a soft cloth. In between shampoos try a dry shampoo by sifting among the hair cornmeal to which has been added powdered orris root in the proportion of a tablespoonful to a cupful of the meal. After it has been well scattered over the head brush it out and it will remove the dust and surplus oil without using water at all. If that fails to stop the hair from falling, try the following: Cologne, eight ounces; tincture of cantharides, one ounce; oil of English lavender and oil of rosemary, each half a drachm. Apply to the roots of the hair once or twice a day.

TO WHITEN FACE

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you please advise me if lemon juice and glycerine are good to whiten my face, which is rough?
AMERICAN GIRL.

LEMON juice and glycerine are excellent for most faces, but occasionally there is one with which it does not agree. In that case use the lemon juice alone, or you might try buttermilk, which is excellent.

EGG SHAMPOO

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you kindly instruct me in the use of eggs for a shampoo? I use them and like the result, except that I cannot get them out of the hair. Please tell me how to prepare them as well.
DISTRESSED.

TO every well-beaten egg add one ounce of water, apply to the scalp and rub in well; rinse in warm, but not hot, water several times, and then apply cold water dry quickly by rubbing the scalp briskly. You probably use the water too hot, which cooks the egg on the hair and renders it very difficult to remove. Be sure to rub the scalp well with the eggs until a thick lather is formed.

VASELINE HAIRGROWER

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you kindly let me know through the BOSTON AMERICAN how vaseline and glycerine are good to whiten my face, which is rough?
AMERICAN GIRL.

RED vaseline is about the best hair grower and should be rubbed well into the scalp every night. A very little only should be used, as the hair will remain greasy otherwise. The aim is to have it absorbed by the scalp, and not simply to anoint the hair with it. For this reason massage well at the same time. After the vaseline has been absorbed, wipe the hair and scalp gently with a cheesecloth rag, which will take up the superfluous grease.

FASHIONS, FADS AND FANCIES

GREEN FAD OVER

THE fad for brilliant green is over. Princess frocks are to stay right along. So are the surplice and fichu bodices.

POINTS ON JEWELRY

PENDANT necklaces enjoy a large vogue, as do also necklaces of coral. Scarabs set in bracelets are also popular, and the uglier the design the better pleased is milady. She also likes a fierce looking god whose mouth and eyes sparkle with diamonds.

SHOULDERS SLOPING

AUTUMN shoulders are to be undeniably long and sloping.

Striped black and white frocks are among the most stunning seen.

THE old man loaded at Marriott quizzically.

"Well, I gan't go out to der odd country now say more. I had more trouble—dot poy Archie —vell, he bin in drouble, too, and now my girl, dot Gusta——"

The old man's lips trembled.

"Vell, she's gone, too."

A tear was rolling down Koerner's cheek. Marriott could not answer him just then; he did not dare to look; he could scarcely bear to think of this old man, with his dream of going to the Fatherland—and all his disappointments. Suddenly, the Spring had receded again; the air was chill, the sun lost its warmth, the sky took on the cold glitter of the days he though were gone. He could hear Koerner's lips puffing at his pipe. He might go on the street and—

"Mr. Koerner," he asked, "why aren't you smoking?"

The old man seemed ashamed.

"Tell me," Marriott demanded.

"Vell—dot's all right. I hain't—chust got der tobacco."

The truth flashed on Marriott; this was deprivation—when a man could not get tobacco! He thought an instant; then he drew their papers and stirring Koerner's hand said:

"There, here's a pipeful anyway; think I do till I can send you some."

Facing Hunger

And he poured the tobacco into Koerner's bare palm. The old man took the tobacco, pressed it into the bowl of his pipe, Marriott struck a match, Koerner lighted his pipe and sat a few minutes in the comfort of smoking again.

"Dot's lovely goodt," he said presently. He smoked on. After a while he turned to Marriott with his old shrewd, humorous glance, his blue eyes twinkled, his white brows twitched.

"Vell, Mister Marriott, you nefer t'ought you see der old man schmoke cigars to-day, eh?"

Marriott laughed, glad of the relief, and glad of the new sense of comradeship the tobacco brought.

"Now, tell me, Mr. Koerner," he said, "if you no want to go back next spring?" Koerner did not reply at once.

"Vell, I don't know now," Marriott urged, "tell me—have you anything to eat in the house?"

"Vell, Koerner answered, "I t'ink so."

"Have you anything at all to eat?"

Koerner made a gesture of despair. In the strange, unaccountable shame people feel in hunger.

"Vell, I—undt der old woman—ve haf chust had anything to eat to-day."

"And the children?"

"Vell, I don't see her last dis morning at ready."

Marriott closed his eyes in the pain of it. He reproached himself that he who argued so glibly that people in general like their cultured imagination that would enable them to realize the plight of the man he merged poor, should have had this condition so long under his very eyes and not have seen it. He was humbled, and then he was angry with himself—an anger that was instantly able to change into an anger with Koerner.

"Well, Mr. Koerner," he said, "I don't know that I ought to sympathize with you after all. You might have told me; you might have known I should be glad to help you; you might have saved me——"

He was about to add "this pain," but he recognized the selfishness of this view, and paused.

"I'll help you, of course," he went on.

"My God, man, you mustn't go hungry! You must never treat you——"

Family Woes

The old man was humbled now, and this humility, this final acquiescence and submission, this rare spirit beaten down and broken at last, this was hardest of all to bear, unless it were his own self-consciousness to this presence of humiliated age—these white hairs and he himself was young! He felt like turning from the indignity of this poverty, as if he had been intruding on another's unsacred sorrow.

"I'll go and attend to it," said Marriott, rising at once.

"Where suit," said Koerner, "chust a minaute. You know my boy, Mister Marriott, Archie? Vell, I write him absoudt der case, but I don't get a answer. He send me der offer once, but I undt now—he don't write no more. You vait t'ink, huh?" The old man looked up a little in the hunger of soul that is even more dreadful than the hunger of the body.

"I'll attend to that, too, Mr. Koerner; I'll write and make him write you. I'll see you know."

"Undt Gusta," the old man began as if, having opened his heart at last, he would abandon it to the end. Then he paused and shook his head slowly. "Dot's a long, long story, Mister Marriott, undt maybe I don't better go undt bodder you."

"You stay right where she is!"

The white head shook again.

"She's go to-day—she's got in trouble, too."

In trouble! It was all the same to him—poverty, hunger, misfortune, guilt, frailty, false ones, crime, sin—these were but poor, thought Marriott, it was all just trouble.

"But it will be all right," he said, "and I advance you what money you need, and I'll write to the warden about Archie. He should get out—the man might—and we well have his dream, too. "You'll go back to Germany yet, you'll see."

Friend in Need

Koerner looked up, clutching at hope again.

"You t'ink dot? You t'ink I vin, huh?"

"Sure," said Marriott heartily, determined to drag joy back into the world.

"By Got, dot's goodt! I guess I beat dot company. I vin dose t'irty dollars perfore year; den dey turn me off. Vell, I beat him yet. Chust let dot lawyer Ford talk; let him—" the old man slammed head off. I beat him—some day.

"I'll go now, Mr. Koerner. I'll speak to the grocer and get you some groceries so you can have a little supper. No, don't get up."

Koerner stretched forth his hand.

"You bin a goodt friendt, Mister Marriott."

Marriott went to the grocery on the corner, bought a dozen things, paying no heed to the prices, and then, as he was about filling his orders, sickening Marriott saw the grocer's face harden.

"Some bunch? Yes, sir. Sugar, butter, eggs, bacon, ham, coffee, tea, canned goods, sir. Potatoes—about a peck, sir—"

Marriott, with a sense of what he should buy, bought everything and added some luxuries for Koerner and some candy for the children.

And when he had arranged with the grocer for an extension of credit to Koerner on his own promise to pay, and made out the card he gave him—Marriott went away with some satisfaction at his good deed, but the grace of spring had gone out of the day and would not now return.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Kind Words for the Living Better Than Praise for the Dead

By Dorothy Dix

ACCORDING to the newspaper dispatches, the other day at Worcester, a poor, lonely, forlorn old woman went out and hung crape on her doorknob.

As she had expected, the neighbors who had neglected her alive no sooner thought that she was dead than they came crowding into her house with friendly offices and attentions, whereupon the supposed corpse explained her little ruse, which was merely to secure to herself while she could enjoy it a little of the consideration and attention that she knew would be shown her so liberally after she was put to the proof.

It would be hard to imagine a more pathetic story than this of the neglected old woman, who was forced to pretend to be dead to appeal to those about her with common attitude; how typical of the ingratitude, the most inexplicable peculiarities of human character!

Why Wait Till Death

How many of us go, for the first time, to our neighbor's house when there is a funeral there?

How many a widow or bereaved husband receives condolence letters eulogizing the departed and expressing appreciation of his faithful and loyal employe by those who never before?

How many a son and daughter never eulogize their parents in their hearing and for all the sacrifices that a father or mother has made for them until they murmured unmeaning words into an ear that is stilled in death.

Yet there were years and years in which our lonely neighbor suffered and thirsted for companionship. A single bouquet would have lightened her days and turned the sorrow of her song into a song of the man whose worth we never seemed to know.

A kind hint that we understood all that the old hands had wrought for us would have paid a thousand times for all their weariness and pain. But we gave none of it. We sat and sighed in silence at home and waited—waited until the crape was tied on our doorbell.

Cemeteries Full of Sarcasm

I sometimes think that in all the world there is no other place so full of cynical sarcasm as a cemetery, and that if the ghosts of the departed are permitted to revisit earth and read the grandiloquent and affectionate inscriptions on the monuments that have been erected to them, they must chortle with mirth.

The only tributes to the esteem in which they were held by their fellow creatures and the love which they bore for their kin, family and friends tally so little with their predecessors' lives.

There are plenty of wives, who from the time they were married, never by any chance are laid in their coffins, never receive some token of love or appreciation from their husbands.

There are plenty of men have really ceased to care for them, not because in the beginning of their union they did not appreciate the patience and fidelity and uncomplaining devotion of their wives, but because are lighting at their sides through all the hard struggles that men have to go to in getting a foothold in the world, but because the day comes when their wives, too self-centered to ever take the time to show their wives what they really feel, is say the words that would make the woman rich. They are waiting for the opportunity to come to her sepulchre that will never come until the crape is hung on the doorbell.

Can't Make It Up

A doctor told me once that the saddest sight that he had ever seen at a deathbed was when a big, strong, rich, successful, self-made man was trying to tell his wife what she had been to him.

The woman had belonged to a much better family and higher social position than the man, and her marriage with him had been regarded by her friends as a mesalliance, but she had stuck to him through thick and thin.

She, who had never done a lick of work in her life before, had uncomplainingly cooked and sewed and scrubbed for him. She had educated him. She had saved and scrimped for him. She had done everything for him that a woman can do for a man, and he had taken it all as his portion in his due, with never a word of recognition of any of the hardships or sacrifices that she had undergone for his sake.

Then the time came when she was dying, and the big, strong man, crushed to the earth, was trying through his sobs to tell her what she had been to him, how every sacrifice she had made had cut him to the quick, how he had fought like a devil or a raging animal every obstacle so that to night give her back in ten-fold ratio the things in society and the luxury she had given up for him.

They were such words, said the physician, as a man might use in praying to his guardian angel, but the woman only smiled faintly and replied:

"It is too late now." Just to have known that you loved me and understood would have made all the years that have been so hard and barren glorious and beautiful, but it is too late now."

And then she turned her face to the wall and died.

Be Kind to Living

We have a proverb to the effect that we should speak nothing of the dead except good.

Sometimes it looks as if we twisted this admirable saying into "Say nothing good of nobody but the dead," which is a mistake.

If you have a kind thing to say of anyone, don't wait until he or she is dead to say it.

If you love your husband or wife, don't wait to carve it on that tombstone. Hand him a flower and a warm to the hungry human being.

If there is some lonely old man or woman or some complainer, don't wait to go to see them until you go to their funeral.

If you have any bouquets to bestow, give them to those who can enjoy them. The poorest man that flowers are ever put to is when they are contorted into Gates Ajar and funeral grasses.

Don't wait to do a kindness until crape is hung on the doorbell.

Pointers for Women Who Are Short

THE short woman's petticoat should match her costume in color. And so, when practical, should her shoes. She should wear a pointed toecap in preference to a plain vamp, as it will give the appearance of length to a short, stubby foot. Gloves for the thick, short hand are best with pronounced lengthwise stitching. Length was lengthening to the figure of low height, as also do tiny lengthwise tucks; the transparent collars decrease the size of the throat.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

PARENTS ARE RIGHT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a girl of seventeen, am keeping company with a young man three years my junior, and he calls to see me three times a week. Every time he calls we are never left alone. Either my sister, brother or mother comes in. My mother says she thinks I am a little too young to be left alone in the parlor with him. Also the little children come in at times, and when I chase them out they come back more than anything else. Kindly tell me if they are doing right by always coming in the parlor when he is there. And also on Sunday evenings we always have company, so I forget for me to stay alone with him or with the company? Also he says we should stay with the company. GRACE F. V.

YOUR mother and father are quite right.

You are too young to expect every one to stay out of the room when your friend calls. If he sees that you are so anxious for the others to keep out he will think that you are greatly interested in him, and it is a mistake to allow a man to think that. Treat him just as a friend of the family and he will be far more likely to call often.

LOOKS LIKE JEALOUSY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am going with a young man, to whom I expect to be engaged in a month, and love him dearly. About two weeks ago I was going with me he went with another girl, whom he used a great deal for, but now he loves me with all his heart, as his actions plainly show. Now, if he happens to meet this young lady he bows to me and then tells me one of it I feel very bad about it, for I do not see why he is doing such a thing at all to do with her, as she is the kind of a girl that would hang to her friends that he is trying to meet her. I don't believe I am jealous, because I think too much of him. Now, do you think I ought to speak to her? If he knows I don't like it? And do you think I ought to make a fuss about it? FLORENCE R.

MY dear child, if what you feel is not jealousy it is an excellent imitation of it. You cannot expect him to cut the girl. Don't be such a foolish child. If you demand so much of him you will lose your friends and he tells me you sincerely. Then why not be content and cease worrying over such trifles.

LONG SLEEVE IS AGAIN IN FASHION

LONG sleeves, tightly fitting sleeves and draped sleeves are the latest and most up-to-date styles shown on the Paris models. Of course it will take some time before they become generally worn, and the short or three-quarter length is still shown on many new models.

The first of these designs is cut on the old leg-of-mutton lines, but it is tucked from neck to shoulder in narrow tucks. At the rather large armhole the fulness is also in tucks and has rather a draped effect.

The next model is very striking and new. It is the plaid sleeve, with the gown of plain material. It is plain, but has a slight elbow effect, with a close row of buttons up the outside line. The last design is a very pretty one for a soft material. It is a full draped sleeve, over which is a shaped piece edged with rows of tiny cord-covered cuttons.

HARVARD MEN FIGHT THE BLAZE WITH FIREMEN

Five Hundred Students "Help" to Save Lodging House in Cambridge.

TWO ALARMS SOUNDED

Five hundred Harvard students covered a bunch of straw which conducted the brain work of a battle against a lodging house fire at No. 50 Winthrop street, Cambridge, today.

The blaze was in the heart of the student lodging district, and a second alarm was sufficient to bring out the college men in droves. They showed the firemen how to couple hose and run lines.

Every move of the firemen was the signal for prolonged cheering. When a solitary fireman appeared on the roof he was greeted by lifty throats in unison singing "Throw that the Life Line," after which he was directed by the busy crowd to "Jump for your life."

The blaze progressed merrily until the ringing of the 10 o'clock lecture bell, which dispersed the students. Thereupon the flames extinguished the blaze without difficulty.

The damage was only $1,000.

TYPOS EXPECT 5,000 FOR HUB CONVENTION

One of the conventions to be held in Boston next year none is attracting more attention or is being prepared for on a more elaborate scale than that of the International Typographical Union, which will convene here on August 10 next. The meetings will be held in Ford Memorial Hall, corner Ashburton place and Bowdoin street.

Union printers from all over this country and Canada are looking forward with keen interest to the Boston convention, which already promises to eclipse any other ever held by their organization. With a membership now of 45,000, the slogan has gone out, "Fifty thousand in Boston, 1908," and the members of the organization are confident this number will be exceeded by many.

Arrangements will be made to accommodate 5,000 delegates and visitors, and in addition the Ladies' Auxiliary of the I. T. U., an organization composed of the wives, sisters, mothers and daughters of the union printers, will hold their annual convention here during the same week.

Boston Typographical Union, No. 13, will celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of its founding the same week, and to commemorate the double event will prepare an elaborate entertainment for the visiting typos during the week of August 10-16. President S. E. Morhall of the local union has a large and enthusiastic committee at work on the preliminary arrangements, and says that all previous entertainments at printers' conventions will be eclipsed.

COMMERCIAL AUTOS A FEATURE OF SHOW

Fourteen Makes Represented and Exhibition Is the Best Ever Held.

BY J. C. KERRISON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Commercial vehicles comprise an important section of the exhibit of the licensed association show now being held in the Madison Square Garden. Each of the fourteen manufacturers of these vehicles having membership in the association exhibit a full line of vehicles for business purposes, and the fact that they are all shown together in the basement adds materially to the interest thereto.

It has ever been conceded that the commercial branch of the industry offers great field for development, and in previous years efforts have been made to bring about an excellent showing therein. This year, however, the show committee has outdone itself, the line being the best collection of commercial vehicles that has ever been placed under one roof at any one and the same time.

All Kinds of Vehicles.

Here is to be found almost every conceivable type of commercial motor, from the light runabout, capable of up to the twenty-ton trucks, some of which are driven by gas engines and others by storage batteries. It is certainly a grand array, and gives one an idea of what the future promises in the way of commercial vehicles.

The main floor of the Garden is thronged with the pleasure vehicles, from the engine to the six and in one remote instance an eight-cylinder touring car. Unwound can, of course, predominate, and speaking about that brings to mind the fact that there is but one manufacturer exhibiting at this show, the Franklin, who confines his efforts to the production of an air-cooled car, all other makers of air-cooled engines now showing water-cooled cars as well. The Knox and the Corbin are both show new cars in water-cooled, as well as their lines of air-cooled cars.

Motor Cycles on Show.

The first exhibit of foreign and domestic made motor cycles is to be found in the basement, and it makes an attractive display to say the least. There seems to be a great future for the motor cycle, and there are those who are so confident in the coming success of the powerful two wheeler that they contend that motor cycles will become as popular in the near future as were the bicycles a few years ago.

The exhibit of the Locomobile Company may be regarded as typical of the advance in automobile construction along accepted lines. The mechanical changes in the Locomobile, although numerous, are not of a radical nature. Wheel bases are longer, bodies are more elegant and offer more conveniences, ridding qualities have also been bettered and increased efficiency combines with the already proved reliability of the output of this conservative company. The new "20" is a handsome car of moderate size and power for five passengers, and it is intended to fill a demand for a car of the highest quality, but of a conveyable size to operate and maintain. One of the principal features is a four speed selective transmission unique among American cars of that size and power. The pressed steel frame is of alloy steel for 1908, and the car springs are made from this expensive material. The radiator and motor are placed farther back on the frame than heretofore, causing a better distribution of weight, better riding qualities, and improved appearance. The motor develops 22½ horse-power, according to the A. L. A. M. formula. The Locomobile "20," frequently referred to as the "Baby Loco," sells for $2,000 with touring body.

Locomobile's Special Classes.

The standard wheel base of the standard chassis is 102 inches, but a special chassis is employed for speed work, the same having a wheel base of 116 inches. The Locomobile company have made a specialty of the limousine for all available mounted on the new "20" long chassis. These modern powered closed cars are high grade in every way, and, although of comfortable seating capacity with accommodation for six persons, are not so large nor so expensive to operate as some of the larger powered limousines. Aclosed car of moderate size and power is particularly desirable because of the convenient manner in which it can be handled on disabled city thoroughfares.

The Packard Motor Car Company is exhibiting its 1908 Packard "Thirty," as well as a limited number of the 1907 model. This is a limousine, as a runabout, and as a stanhope phaeton, from the engine to the six and in one remote instance an eight-cylinder touring car. Unwound can, of course, predominate, and speaking about that brings to mind the fact that there is but one manufacturer exhibiting at this show, the Franklin, who confines his efforts to the production of an air-cooled car, all other makers of air-cooled engines now showing water-cooled cars as well. The Knox and the Corbin are both show new cars in water-cooled, as well as their lines of air-cooled cars.

Other Pack.rd Features.

The well-known Packard internal expanding clutch, insuring gradual engagement, is used. The drive is by propeller shaft. The speed changing set, the final drive bevel gears and the differential are contained in a rigid aluminum housing forming a rear axle unit. There are three speeds forward and a reverse by sliding gears. All gears run on annular ball bearings. There is an internal expanding and an external contracting brake on each rear wheel.

SNEAK THIEVES VISIT MEDFORD

Residents of the Glenwood section of Medford were disagreeably surprised this morning to find that they had been visited during the night by sneak thieves, every house in Farragut and Sheridan avenues and the upper end of Spring street had been entered. At the home of Miss L. Randall, corner of Spring and Hooker streets, a choice collection of wedding presents belonging to the bride and her sister, Miss, who was recently married, were stolen. Every little bit helps was evidently the motto, and the residence of Mr. John Mitchell, on Spring street, in addition to a pocketbook and a small sum of money the thieves carried off a Salvation Army cent-a-day box. The local police were early on the scene, but no clues have been found.

MINERS' CAGE FALLS.

LIEGE, Belgium, Nov. 5.—The cage of a coal mine shaft at Collard fell 300 feet yesterday, killing, mortally injuring or maiming its thirteen occupants.

NOTED YEGG IN POLICE TOILS

Recognized as Frank Connose, a noted yeggman and safe blower, wanted since August 29 for participating in the robbery of the Hyde Park postoffice and the safe and stealing $170, a man who gave his name as George Lee when he was arrested by Inspector Patterson and Sergeant Norton for vagrancy, was today turned over to the federal authorities.

Otto Krebs, who took part in the Hyde Park robbery, is now serving three years in the state prison, and his pal, Leroy Campbell, Edward Owen, is serving a year there.

Connors is known as George Lee and Frank Cramer and the police say he has taken part in many recent burglaries in New England.

'SPECS' GET TICKETS FOR GAME

Specialators will have plenty of tickets for the Harvard-Indian football game next Saturday, all on account of the system of the graduate sale at No. 92 State street.

With the announcement that there would be a sale, the "specs" were around in plenty, and by their actions it was evident that they were getting what they went for.

For two hours a long line of anxious seekers of seats was constantly going up to the grated window behind which was an inspector who looked each applicant over and if his inspecting was satisfactory the applicant got what he was after. Many bona fide Harvard graduates who failed to pass the inspection were told to "move on." There was no redress. No autographs were issued for a member to prove his identity.

All the time the smooth-looking specialators were moving up to the window as often as they pleased and receiving the full complement of four tickets.

REDSKIN AFRAID-OF-A-BEAR DOWNING RUNNER IN PRACTICE.

The Indians will meet the Harvard eleven in the Stadium Saturday and a great game is expected. Captain Lubo hopes the weather will be pleasant and the field dry, so the Red Skins can use some of their wonderful trick plays. The Carlisle boys came out of the Princeton game in good shape.

Afraid-of-a-Bear, Carlisle's left guard, is one of the greatest players on the great Indian team. He is strong on both defence and offence. In tackling, Afraid-of-a-Bear nails his man in his tracks, bringing him down with great force.

LANGFORD SIGNS FOR JACKSON

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 5.—Sam Langford and Young Peter Jackson, the colored heavyweights, to-day signed articles calling for a twenty-round fight on November 12 before the Pacific Athletic Club.

The men will battle for 50 per cent. of the gross receipts, the money to be divided 75 to the winner and 25 to the loser. This is the first time that the money has been split at the local club by these figures in a long while and testifies to the absolute confidence of both fighters.

Langford has been training at the Naud Junction pavilion. Jackson will do his work at San Pedro. He has been on the road for two mornings, but has done no inside work as yet.

ARMORY A. A. GETS A HOME

The Armory Athletic Association has signed a lease with the owners of the property at No. 541 Tremont street, formerly the Cyclorama building. The original intentions in regard to the Armory A. A. will now be carried out, and a clubhouse provided for the members of the organization.

Room L112 in the Old South building will be retained as a downtown office.

BIG PURSE FOR JOHNSON TO BOX BURNS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—Jimmy Coffroth, the California fight promoter, said to-day that he will offer a purse of $25,000 for a forty-five-round bout between Tommy Burns, the present leader of the active heavyweight pugilists, and Jack Johnson, the big negro who so nearly disposed of Jim Flynn in the eleventh round of the open-air battle here on Saturday last. Coffroth puts to get the fight at the Colma A. C. on New Year's afternoon, and he says that the winner will be looked upon as the heavyweight championship of the world.

Johnson has already signified his assent to the offer and accepted it in a hurry, as was to be expected. Coffroth has sent a cablegram to Burns, who is now in England. If the fight ever comes off it should prove one of the greatest battles in modern ring history.

RYAN AND BONNER DRAW.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 5.—Jimmy Bonner of Summit Hill and Billy Ryan of Syracuse, fought six fast rounds before the Peerless A. C. Honors were even at the close of the fight. Bonner was the more aggressive, but Ryan warded off his heavy blows.

A. A. U. CROSS-COUNTRY RACE.

The A. A. U. national cross-country championships will be held on November 23. The distance will be 10 miles and the finish will be around the track at Celtic Park, Long Island, the athletic home of the Irish-American A. C. of New York.

PILGRIMS GET HARD HITTER IN CRAVATH

The following from a Los Angeles exchange will be good news to the Boston baseball fans, as Cravath will be with the Boston American League team next season.

"Three home runs in one afternoon is something the local fans can think about for days, and these are what the 5,000 people saw in yesterday's two ball games at the Chutes grounds. It was the last day for the Smithy Kanes, and they were tickled over with the public gleam of defeat in their final bows to the public of this city.

"It was a very inglorious ending, but as long as Cravath played in both games they had no chance. He tried to knock the fence down with every ball that was pitched at him, and he did hit two of them over for home runs, one in each game. The first one came with two men on bases, and in the next inning he slapped out a two-bagger against the fence that scored a man ahead of him, so he was the cause of the Loafers making five runs of the ten they had during the day.

"This is the fellow from Santa Ana that so many scribes called a bunkey even after he had played here a year, and he was certainly a wizard with the bat yesterday, and strange to say he didn't have a chance to do any fielding in either game, or, rather, to make any outs. In six times at bat he hit two home runs, a two-bagger and two singles, and all of them were the kind of swats that hurt a man who tries to stop them."

CRIMSON KICKERS WILL BE PUSHED HARD TODAY

This afternoon will be one of work for all the Harvard varsity football men. They will be sent against the best scrub team that can be made up and the practice will be repeated to-morrow and Thursday. Then there will be a letup on Friday, to allow the kickers a little rest before the Indian game.

The time of the Indian game has been changed by the Harvard football management from 3 o'clock as was announced to 2:30. This change was made in order to give a longer period of daylight for the game. The last five minutes of the Brown game were uncomfortably dark.

None of the men who played against Brown were on the hospital list to-day except Pierce and Lockwood.

Captain Pierce had been laid out, as usual, and given light work, while the other veterans were all given a day's rest from practice. Lockwood was given work in handling the forward pass on the end side kick, which he did admirably. His leg is not entirely well yet, but is sufficiently recovered to begin to work out a little every day.

Daly found that his backs were not getting good enough passing from the centres, so he abandoned the backs for a while and took the centre men in hand. It did not take him long to give the ball to Eden, which they followed well. Reggie Brown, who has not been on the field for almost two weeks, was on hand yesterday for the first time.

Bob Kernan was on the field and watched the scrimmage between the varsity subs with interest. Gil Brown sprained a knee in his leg in Saturday's game and will be out of practice for a few days only. The subs scored once on the varsity in a twenty-five minute scrimmage, and after holding them for downs on their own three-yard line the subs pushed the ball down the field and had it within reach of a touchdown when time was called.

The Harvard undergraduates will hold the first meeting of the year in the Union this evening for the purpose of trying out the new football songs that have been composed. Captain Parker and one or two of the coaches will speak to the student body.

INDIANS HOPE STADIUM GRIDIRON WILL BE DRY

CARLISLE, Pa., Nov. 5.—Far from being demoralized or discouraged by their defeat by the Tigers Saturday the Indians started to get into shape for Harvard.

Few of the redskins were injured, but Homer sustained a bad back wrench and may be out of the practice scrimmages for a few days.

Carlisle expects to make a good showing against Harvard, whom she has never defeated.

The Indian coaches are naturally anxious to allow the redskin's brothers to heal quickly. Captain Lubo said that he gave all credit to Princeton for a clean, hard game of football. Lubo said that the Indians' forward pass could not be stopped because of weather conditions and the end plays were impossible for a Dry Field.

Lubo said that if the gridiron in the Stadium is dry Saturday better results will be made.

WALTER CAMP MAKES YALE KICKERS HUSTLE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 5.—Yale's poor showing in the W. and J. game brought Walter Camp to the field, and the veteran with the other coachers gave the squad a severe drill.

For an hour the men practiced with the gates closed, and were drilled by about a dozen coaches. Besides a long signal drill several trick plays were tried, and a short scrimmage in which neither side scored finished up the secret practice.

Coy was not in the game, nor was the substitute fullback, Phillips, who is suffering from the effects of a wound inflicted by a lead pencil flowing his knee. Wylie filled the position at fullback, playing a long scrimmage for the first time in two weeks.

Brides was not at the field, and Beebe played left end and d halfback, alternating with Wheaton, who filled the position at left halfback.

Wheaton played half the scrimmage, and then was injured by a fall on his back, but it is expected he will be all right to-day.

CAPTAIN GLAZE BACK IN FOOTBALL TOGS AT DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 5.—Encouraged by Brown's showing against Harvard, the Dartmouth coaches are rushing their charges, so they will be in good shape on November 16.

Besides Coaches O'Connor and Gilman, McDonald, Donnelly and Coburn of the '05 and '06 teams were on the field offering suggestions.

Besides the preliminary work of practicing starts, running down under punts and signal work, the varsity lined up against the scrubs for another half of twenty minutes.

Captain Glaze was in uniform for the first time since the Amherst game, which seems to be his hoodoo. Last year he was laid out after the Amherst game for the rest of the season.

BUTLER HERE FOR RACE ON INDOOR TRACK

It's busy times up at the Park Square bike track with a dozen stars taking daily spins on the high banked track trimming up for the big grind next week.

New riders are coming in every day from all points of the compass. Yesterday Nat Butler, the old Hub favorite, blew in and the battle scarred veteran, who has been picking up the money over in Germany the last three years and got away with his life, where others had failed, was glad to be back once more. He said he had cleaned up about $8,000 on his long trip and is willing to go abroad again and risk his life. Not said that he will go to Germany a man has got to travel at a gait of 54 miles an hour and do better than a mile a minute with wind shields.

Hardy Downing, the San Jose flyer, and Hugh MacLean took workouts behind the motors as they are to meet in a fifteen mile motor pace on Saturday night when the new track will be formally opened. It will be a duel of speed between the East and the West.

It's a great array at the track now with Eddie Root the champion, Moran, Joe Fogler, the German, who arrived yesterday, MacLean, Keegan, Logan, Mat Downey, Mitten and others.

MAKES FRESHMAN CREW WORK LATE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Jim Rice, the coach of the Columbia crews, started an innovation this week by keeping the freshman candidates at work, instead of letting them quit after the Fall regatta. Never before this year has a Blue and White crew practiced much later than November 1, but Rice said yesterday that he was going to keep the first year men at work until the river is blocked with ice. His intentions are to develop the freshmen so that they will be able to handle a shell when they start work in the Spring.

DICK NELSON MEETS ROUSE O'BRIEN TO-NIGHT

The sports who saw Dick Nelson, the fighting Dane, work out at Steve O'Donnell's boxing academy at the South End are satisfied that Rouse O'Brien is up against it this time, and that he will not succumb to the tireless endeavor of the namesake of the Battler, at Chelsea to-night.

Nelson demonstrated that he is a lightweight that will bear close watching all the time while in the ring, for he is an aggressive, two handed mixer that nothing deters from getting to where he can do his best execution. He is essentially a body puncher and one that shows results after a few rounds.

With the election returns to be announced from the ring the members will not have to wait until the bout is over for the results.

With two preliminaries and a semi-final of the star kind a good evening's sport is in view. Pat Duffy of East Boston and Joe Nelson of Chelsea should furnish a fast mill, while Babe Brace of St. Albans, Vt. and Kid Lavigne of the West End will keep popping away at one another in vigorous style. The re-entry of Johnny Fitzgerald of South Boston with Billy Harlow of Charlestown will be watched closely by the fans.

Notes of the Boxers.

Frank Golch, seeing a chance for a little ready money, is busily spurring whether he can't enter the ring with Jack Johnson as first opponent. Jack would give Frankie a flying start, all right.

Battling Nelson may not be in as big a way with the fight fans in the West, but he is certainly making a hit with the fighters. He has been sparring exhibitions in Montana towns, and last night, while delivering a short address, a lady in the box showered him with silver dollars.

Jimmy Barry, ex-bantamweight champion of the world, has a new champion. He will try to make matches for George Memmer, a Kansas City battler, who is said thought of. He will also train Memmer.

Charley Neary does not intend to go East for a fight. He has signed to box Jack Root at Salt Lake City, and will leave for the Mormon burg after considering the proposition. The Milwaukee star also is considering an offer to go to Australia to box Bouse O'Brien.

Although Manager Jack Gleason still has hopes of being able to secure a return match for a finish between Joe Thomas and Young Peter Jackson the latter become tired of waiting, and both pulled down their forfeits, which were put up by Manager Forbes from Gleason, and he also withdrew his Bonus.

Herman-McFarland fight. Attell declares if the winner will make $25 towards himself he will accept. Abe's quick and clever work in the ring stamps him as a boy of unusual class, and he is gradually gaining more and more confidence.

Bernard Fredda Welsh's manager, who has all along had a high regard for the Welsh boy, now thinks he is the greatest lightweight in the world of his class save Attell, his words of great praise for the Brita Hebrew. He thinks he can even beat Ritchie in a twenty-round battle.

Several quick knockouts have recently led Billy Peake to believe that he can stop Cappel if given the opportunity. Manager Gus Greenlick has stalled through early wrestling dopes in both of their fights, and he looks upon Peake as a cinch to put Cappel to sleep in Peoria.

H. J. Smiley that Sailor Burke will journey to Guilford to meet Young Peter Jackson. Only the other day he refused to fight any of the so-called colored fighters. This Jackson person is no mark, for he has shown that he has a lot of class in the ring. Two rounds with Burke and a fast pace would be quite an even money affair, so it is doubtful if a more suitable match could be made.

The Jack Robinson-Fred Ireland fight has been postponed by the Riverside Athletic Club of Derby, Ct., until November 7. The boys will box six rounds at catchweights. The preliminary bout will precede the star bout, and the matches will be made up of New York and Connecticut talent.

Notes of the Diamond

Report has it that the St. Louis Browns are about to make a trip to Manila. However, upon investigation this proved to be false. Ban Johnson had written regarding such a trip, but it was found impossible to arrange it, as the season is over in most of the leagues in the Philippines.

Pat Moran, the second catcher for the World's Champion Cubs, is still in Chicago applying for relief of having his nose straightened. It is also rumored that he has other ailments there and must remain for two or three months. It seems that Overall is not the only one who has had trouble since becoming one of the world's champs.

The Chicagoans, O. Anderson and Schlei, are going on taking in a big bunch of money next Spring before the season opens and before the salaries of their players begin. Several of the big league teams are going to play them, and the receipts should be big prices and big crowds always attended such games.

Carmie Mack is said to have something like fifteen pitchers on his list for next season. The American Association and Eastern League will be able to announce to the public some of their plans, as when teams have decided which ones to discard.

One story coming from the East says that Brooklyn, Washington, Baltimore and Providence are to be in the proposed outlaw league. It might help them.

A Western paper has printed a whole column saying that Charley Comiskey would depose Ban Johnson this Winter and elect Mike Scanlon as president of the American League. Ben was then to be made chief of the new outlaw league.

Meanwhile, the genial Comiskey, president of the World's Champion Cubs, expects to leave the latter part of the week with his wife for Hot Springs, Syracuse, where the two will carry over the top scores all Winter. Frank already has a couple of trunkloads of harness, boots, bandages, blankets, liniments, rubbing sticks, all of which are ready for a thoroughbred.

Frank Chance will work at the Ascot track again this Winter, if he is a happy man over the deal, and besides makes $10 a day for his labor. He trains in the morning and afternoon, and allows the public for one of the books in the afternoon.

The Reds' barnstorming trip ended Friday, their share of the receipts, as follows: Cincinnati, $2,641.11; Pittsburg, $2,641.11; Chance, $1,320.55; Dividend for each player, $197.77. They broke eighteen games, winning fourteen and losing two to one run each.

A reporter told McGinnity that last week it was rumored he would be in St. Louis in the near future, and that matters might be so arranged that he would get a job with the firm of Robison & McCloskey. "That's all news to me," replied the iron man. "However, I would be thrilled to death to play in St. Louis. It's near my home town, you know, and if I was performing there I would be able to make frequent trips to South Manchester and watch over my family and business.

MISS FARRAR MISQUOTED, SAYS FATHER

Melrose Prima Donna Also Denies Making Attack on Her Country.

Sid Farrar of Melrose, father of Geraldine Farrar, the prima donna, declares that a grave injustice has been done his daughter in the story which was cabled from Berlin yesterday that America was corrupt and had no understanding of art.

"She could not have made such a statement," he declared.

Miss Farrar, who is now in Germany, is also very much wrought up over the alleged interview, and says:

"I said nothing but what was appreciated in America unless he had a European catchet, whereas he has only to come to Germany to have his talents and abilities properly appreciated and recompensed.

"Regarding the allegation that I said the political system in America was corrupt and that the people ought to be governed like Germany, what I really said was that, owing to the slow changes in laws, a good man can Government and Wall street functionthose, no longer needed, are kept in office, been established there, and if America had a municipal system like Germany's there would soon be institutions for the recognition and support of American talent.

"I never said there was no art in America, and that there was no standard house there for its encouragement as in France and Germany."

Fighting the Piano Trust

The name "Piano Trust" sounds big and powerful and frightening, a giant with many tentacles, but it does not mean a thing to us. We have been cutting their prices and quoting everything—thanking and actually slaughtering their prices, and have been bringing to the front the best instruments in every line. We have been cutting their throats and saving no money doing it, so we are going to continue cutting and selling pianos at high-grade piano, new or second hand, at prices that make the big Piano Trust wince.

A Piano Sale here is always a success, it stays a bargain nor accepts a back-down sale. The very nature of the business is the best evidence that we are sacrificing. The business here is not conducive like the average dealer on the square deal plan. Here they are expected to make a profit on each piano—they have got their profit DIRECTLY out of the sale of pianos. We don't let any pianos but accept on the face of the tag. The Mother Tiger Cuffs Her Cubs

That Is the Surest Way of Making Them Savage

The delightful idea advanced by a few incompetent school teachers that whipping is necessary to discipline in the schools would not be so popular if it were extended so as to include the teachers themselves as a means of preserving discipline among them.

In the present stage of civilization the mere advocacy of beating children ought immediately to disqualify the teacher who advocates.

The belief that the whip is necessary to make children behave themselves is in the first place A CONFESSION OF ABSOLUTE INCOMPETENCE.

No teacher who understands his profession NEEDS to beat children in order to make them conduct themselves quietly.

The competent, useful teacher INTERESTS his pupils, inspires them with a desire to learn, and arouses in them that intelligent curiosity which keeps their minds on their work.

Every child, even the most stupid, has born in him a certain interest in his surroundings, and a desire to know more about them, which, intelligently directed, results in his EDUCATION.

To keep this interest alive, to gratify it with satisfying explanations, and to encourage it, is the work that every teacher should be able to do.

And any person, intrusted with the education of children, who cannot do this, and who cannot inspire the confidence and respect of the pupils, is completely unfitted for any position in public or private schools.

Trying to inspire confidence by the practice of brutality is as sensible as hacking down a tender plant with an axe in order to make it grow more luxuriantly.

The mother tiger, after her cubs have grown large enough to shift for themselves, keeps them at a distance by cuffing them roughly, and the baby tigers, quick as children to imitate, go out and cuff other creatures in the same fashion.

The chastising they get from their mother does not make them dutiful or obedient. It makes them SAVAGE. It teaches them that brutality is what rules the animal world, and that until they become accomplished in it they will have little chance.

And so they become as much like their snarling, cuffing, biting mother as they can, until their savagery, which is tiger education, enables them to make their way in the jungle.

There can be only one excuse for beating children, either by teachers or parents, and that excuse, WHICH IS A VERY BAD ONE, is extreme anger.

To club or otherwise chastise a helpless child in cold blood, without even the excuse of anger, is a thing that should not be tolerated by any people pretending to civilization.

Unfortunately, it is not yet possible to abolish whipping by parents, unless it is unusually severe. Only public opinion now can keep the brute of a father or the irritable mother from brutalizing their children, and lowering their own standing in their children's respect.

But it is possible to stop whipping in the schools. In fact it has already been stopped, and it must never be allowed to begin again.

It is a very fortunate thing that the great body of teachers in America are a fine, competent body of men and women, whose only ambition is to do their work effectively and quietly, and who are proud to be intrusted with the highest duty of civilization.

Teachers who favor corporal punishment are in a very small minority, and that minority will in time steadily decrease until there will be no more talk of barbarity in the schools, and no more fear that the club will be again introduced as a substitute for the magnetism and leadership which all good teachers possess.

The Successful Burglar MUST Know His Business

Honest Men Could Profitably Imitate Him to the Extent of Learning Theirs

The burglar who comes quietly into your house at night and helps himself to any of your property that he can sell MUST know his business.

Without a perfect mastery of the art of picking locks, porch climbing and being noiseless, his trade would be impossible.

The penalty of lack of skill with him is jail. Fortunately most burglars reach prison in the long run. The clumsy burglar is jailed before he gets any profit at all out of his business.

To learn his trade perfectly the burglar expends an amount of time and energy and ATTENTION that would make him successful in any honest undertaking.

He must be a skilful mechanic, a shrewd observer of human nature and resourceful enough to act swiftly and to his own advantage in any emergency.

Burglars who are most successful and who stay longest out of jail do not add murder to their activities, and avoid embarrassing encounters with their victims whenever possible.

This is much more difficult than "strong arm" methods and requires much more adroitness, and this is acquired very slowly and carefully.

Of course, the burglar has not a good mind, or he would not, even though his criminal tendencies were unduly developed, be engaged in the burgling business, when so many avenues of higher—and safer—crime are open.

But he does WORK to learn his business, and he does THINK, both of which are necessary TO KEEP HIM OUT OF JAIL.

If the penalty of indolence and thoughtlessness were as apparent to the average young man as it is to the burglar, there would be more useful citizens in the world.

With the boy beginning life, the only result of laziness is lack of promotion. He finds it easy enough to GET ALONG, to hold a LITTLE job, and to DO AS WELL AS HE HAS BEEN DOING.

And not until he is well advanced in life does he realize that THE MAN WHO IS NOT GOING AHEAD IS GOING BACKWARD, and that the penalty of idleness is just as certain and just as uncomfortable as the jail which is so feared by the burglar.

That penalty is POVERTY—poverty not only for himself, but for the family that even the most worthless man usually manages to acquire before he is thirty.

It is a terrible penalty, and to avoid it every man may well spend as much hard, thoughtful work, trying to master his own calling and thereby insure success as the burglar does to master his criminal trade.

A life sentence to dependence, to hunger, to the bitterness of seeing his wife go insufficiently fed and clothed, and his children grow up uneducated—perhaps to be condemned to work in a child-killing factory, is far harder for a man to endure than any sentence the harshest judge can impose on a burglar.

Such a sentence will never be imposed on the active, industrious man, who THINKS ABOUT HIS WORK, and keeps from growing inefficient by growing steadily more effici[illegible]

It is hard to see the jail of pover[illegible]outh and high spirits are abundant, but IT IS THERE [illegible] to keep out of it is to be at least as careful as th[illegible] YOUR BUSINESS AND SUCCEED IN IT.

Whatever Is—Is Best

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

I KNOW as my life grows older,
And mine eyes have clearer sight—
That under each rank wrong, somewhere,
There lies the root of Right;
That each sorrow has its purpose,
By the sorrowing oft unguessed,
But as sure as the sun brings morning,
Whatever is—is best.

I KNOW that each sinful action,
As sure as the night brings shade,
Is somewhere, sometime punished,
Tho' the hour be long delayed.
I know that the soul is added
Sleepless by the heart's unrest,
And to grow means often to suffer—
But whatever is—is best.

I KNOW there are no errors,
In the great Eternal plan,
And all things work together
For the final good of man,
And I know when my soul speeds onward,
In its grand Eternal quest,
I shall say as I look backearthward,
Whatever is—is best.

Husbands, Wives, Divorce and Fences

By Winifred Black

A NEW YORK woman has sued her husband for divorce because he won't let her do up her hair in a marcel wave.

Why doesn't she make him stop doing his hair in a varnish part, get even that way, and call it square?

Dear, dear; what little bits of pebbles are the rocks people who really don't care for each other and are looking for an excuse to separate split on, after all.

If I loved a man I wouldn't care whether he wore a pink vest and purple spats to church or a bath robe and a pair of carpet slippers to business.

It's the man I'd love, and not his clothes or the way he combed his hair.

A man who wants to compel his wife to do her hair or undo it any particular way doesn't deserve a wife at all.

What he needs is a tabby kitten and a cup of tea all by himself somewhere in what he'd love to call a bachelor apartment.

Any man who is a man knows that the way to make a woman who cares a snap of her finger for him dress her hair any particular way is to tell her that she looks sweet as a peach when her hair is done in that particular twist, and that will settle the whole question; but when it comes to exercising husbandly authority—tut, tut, sir; leave such little fussy traits to old maid school teachers.

Divorce a man because he nagged at me about my hair?

Not I.

I'd wear my hair in a pig tail or twist it into a sailor's knot or shave it off and wear a wig to please the man I loved—if he didn't try to make me do it.

If he did that, why, I'd simply laugh at him till he'd buy me anything to get me to stop smiling every time I looked at him; and then I'd go and do just what he wanted me to—when I didn't have to.

Once when I was a little girl my mother scolded me for tearing my frock. "You seem to think," she said, looking at me with a face of aggrieved wonder, which I can see this minute as distinctly as if it were right before me, "You seem to think that all a fence is for is for you to climb over."

I'm afraid that mother of mine was a good deal of a mind reader. And I sometimes begin to believe that there are a good many fence climbers in this world besides those who tear their little frocks in getting over.

Take down the fence, Mr. Husband; take it down; and first thing you know your wife won't spend half so much time looking over into the green pastures you are helping to make so alluring.

Bobbie's Essays

By William F. Kirk

BOBBIE, my teecher sed, I dare say you read the papers every day. Yes, deer teecher, I sed.

Well, Bobbie, I want you to rite a essay to-morrow about what you see in the papers, my teecher sed.

The moast that I see in the papers nowadays is Divorce, wich means that two (2) loving peepul find out that everything is not jest as it shud be in the old homestead. There are two (2) reesons for Divorce:

1. Longing for other surroundings.
2. Longing for other peepul.

In the old days, my Pa told me, there was no divorces. In the old days, Pa said, the ladies was so glad to git married & that they stayed married & dident kick when the pay envelope had wrinkles in its sides, Pa sed.

Besides, he sed, if a lady got a divorce from a gent in the days when Nitehood was Flower, she wasent spoke to on the street or in the parlors by the other ladies, beekaus they dident have any divoarce.

In these dissheerit days, Pa sed, divorces is as thick as Apple Blossoms in May. There are many kinds of divoarces, sed Pa, of wich the following is sum:

1. Divoarces for cruel & inhuman treetment, that is the common or barnyard variety, Pa sed.
2. Divoarces for in-com-pat-ability. That is the Divoarces, Pa sed, wich is got by peepul when both of them say Shure, why not?
3. Divoarces for affinities, wich is the limit, Pa says. Thank heevens, he tould me, me & yure Ma won't never have any trubbel about affinities, beekaus my pay envelop is her affinity, Pa sed, & she sticks to it like a brother, or, as Shakespeer sed, grapels it to her soul with hooks of steel.

The greatest Divoarcer in Histry, sed Pa, was Henry the Eight (VIII). They called him Bluff King Hal, Pa sed, beekaus he got away with so many bluffs before the Judge, sed Pa.

He had quite a lot of queens, Pa tould me, & before the old shoes & rice wich bounced off the cab had been picked up by the Old Clothes man, Pa sed, a cloud always drifted across the honeymoon and the queen found herself left at the post, or, as thay sed in those days, running for Sweeny.

Any man with good shoulders, a fair line of talk & sum standing with the cashier, Pa sed, can get a queen, but when a man can get half a dozen queens in a row & lose them all without much trubbel, that is sum mental arithmetik, sed Pa.

A other grate Divoarcer, sed Pa, was Napoleon, wich gave Josefine the Dubbel Cross jest when she was beginning to think about moving into a bigger & more costly flat with all the trimmins for serviss and two (2) coons in the hall.

But Napoleon, Pa tould me, was a truly grate man, Bobbie, like yure father, & cud git away with lots of things.

Try it, sed Ma, try it. Napoleon, Ma sed, wich saw his star of destiny, was one proposishun, you are another, Ma sed. Try it, & see what kind of start you see.

All in a Day's News

By C. B. Quincy

HARVARD UNIVERSITY.—Astronomers report that several knobs appear in Saturn's rings. It is thought he may have tried to work off a paste one on Venus, and that both ring and engagement are off.

PARIS.—James Hazen Hyde is engaging opera singers for New York. Mr. Hyde was formerly in the insurance business.

LONDON.—English papers are priding themselves upon the enterprise and accuracy in handling American news. For instance, the Daily Mail recently received this cable from its correspondent in New York:

"Tame bear claws keeper Jersey City."

The Mail appeared the following morning with this story:

"For many days past, while we in England, fortunately, are heedlessly living in ease instead of being up and buying the Daily Mail Cyclopaedia and History of the Universe (easy payments), Americans have been terrorized by savage bears, which wander from the Rockies into the streets of the City of Jersey, capital of the province of that name.

"Scores of persons have been devoured in the City of Jersey, and the neighboring villages of Chicago, Cincinnati, New Rhode Island and Vermont Island are in fear of instant death.

"President Roosevelt and his Rough-hold Troops are on the way by special train to exterminate the monsters. President Roosevelt, by the way, is a contributor to the Daily Mail Home Educator (2½d. weekly), which can be obtained on easy payments.

"England should be thankful there are no bears here."

The London Times publishes the following story:

"A sanguinary battle was fought in Boston yesterday with a raiding band of Indian braves, who, after a desperate fight, were finally exterminated by soldiers. The citizens were terrorized by the fierce aborigines, but there was no excuse for the brutal massacre of the wretched Redskins. The incident shows the difference in our ways of treating subject races. Where British law runs the native is not shot down, but horsewhipped into doing useful work for his civilizers.

"It is rumored that President Roosevelt will call upon England for aid in suppressing the Indians, who are holding the city in a state of siege."

WASHINGTON.—Foreign navies are terrified by the news that naval officers acting as aides to the President will be equipped with aigulletes of the latest quick-fire pattern.

Later.—It develops that aigulletes are only bits of gold lace, but they are expected to scare the enemy just as much
